

Jap Artillery in Continuous Fire On Tientsin Area

Try to Drive Chinese Gunners From Rail Station Zone

TERROR PREVAILS

Bad Weather Keeps Planes From Resuming Bombardment

Tientsin.—(AP)—Japanese artillery bombarded continuously in Tientsin today in an attempt to drive from the central railway station area and the Chinese city groups of di-hard Chinese machine-gunners.

Heavy weather kept Japanese planes from resuming their two-day bombardment of scattered Chinese positions, but artillery systematically blasted at surviving Chinese opposition.

The heavy shelling increased panic among Chinese residents. Thousands of them tried to enter foreign concessions.

Railway and highway communications were disrupted as Japanese strove to complete mopping up Chinese resistance and bring this commercial gateway to North China under full control.

Japanese military authorities here confirmed reports that their planes had bombed Peiping, 85 miles southwest of Tientsin. They explained the action was necessary because of concentration there of remnants of the 29th Chinese army and units of central Chinese armies.

New hostilities started at Tientsin when Japanese attacked a Chinese unit still entrenched near the central railway station despite two days of heavy bombardment of the city by Japanese batteries.

An earlier barrage of shells screaming into the ravaged city had brought no reply from Chinese guns. This had led to the belief that Japanese domination of the city was complete.

At the same time Japanese reports asserted their army had advanced down the Hankow-Peiping railway line south of the ancient Chinese capital to a point 18 miles beyond the city's walls, to tighten Japan's grip on the central region of the northern provinces.

Japs at Liangshang
The spearhead of the Japanese advances thus reached Liangshang, three miles south of Chianhsien, on the vital railway line linking Peiping with central and southern China.

Japanese military sources yesterday stated that advances beyond a 20-mile radius from Peiping were not contemplated at present.

The Japanese drive carried the advancing army to the west bank of the Yungting river which hitherto had been the farthest boundary of Japanese military activity. Aircraft and artillery were said to have opened fire against Chinese forces entrenched in the hills of Peiping.

Terror Continues
The renewed shelling of Tientsin revived the terror that swept the populous city during the last two days of bombardment. Thousands of homeless Chinese streamed from the native quarter during the night, fearing just such recommended shelling as occurred this morning.

Corpses were said still to be strewn along the narrow, twisting streets, but no accurate estimate could be made of the total number of casualties.

Chinese officers reported thousands of noncombatants were killed in the first day's attack. Although the air force and infantry continued mopping-up action against scattered Chinese units near Tientsin and Peiping, the Japanese army claimed military control of all of Hopeh province north of a line between Tangku and a point approximately 18 miles south of Peiping.

Controls Two Railroads
Control of the territory placed Japan astride China's two north-south railway lines and in command of the eastern terminus of one railroad into Inner Mongolia. The Japanese ended a two-year behind-the-scenes domination of the North China government with Lieutenant General Kiyoshi Katsuki's appointment of Chi Tseung-Nou as chief executive of the East Hopeh regime to succeed Yin Ju-Kung, head of the semi-autonomous council since 1935.

WHAT A WORD!

A sentence in a magazine reads: "He is a dark-haired, dolichocephalic gentleman of 31, and is regarded definitely as a phenomenon." The fellow referred to must be a phenomenon to have an adjective like that applied to him. Some of the results from Post-Crescent Want Ads while probably not "dolichocephalic" are almost phenomenal. Workers in 25 Auto Shops on Strike Today

Walkout Called After Union Officials, Owners Fail to Agree

SEEK HIGHER PAY
Dealers Contend Wage Scale Asked Is "Much Too High"

A strike affecting about 25 auto dealer shops in Appleton, Neenah, Menasha, Kaukauna, Little Chute and Kimberly was called this noon by the Machinists and Mechanics union, local No. 747. The strikers are seeking a union agreement which provides principally for a higher wage scale and a 48-hour week.

The strike was called today after three months of negotiating between union officials and a committee representing garage dealers failed to bring about an agreement. W. A. Heath, international representative of the Machinists and Mechanics union, affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, said that about 170 workers are involved in the strike. Picketing is planned, he said.

Dealers are firm in their stand against signing the agreement and state they will refuse to negotiate further until the organization includes the majority of shop workers, and also independent garages and filling stations.

Claims Wages Law
Some dealers reported that they are operating with part of their shop crews. Heath claims mechanics are getting wages ranging from 28 to 50 cents per hour and that some other shop employees are receiving less than that amount. Dealers on the other hand say that the wage scale asked is "much too high."

It was decided to call the strike, union leaders said, after a meeting with a committee of dealers earlier this week at which no agreement could be reached.

Although unable to state how many workers were involved in the strike, a member of the dealers' committee said this afternoon there were fewer than the 170, the number claimed by the union representative.

Two Youths Escape When Car Drops Into Oneida Street Canal

Caught inside an automobile submerged in 14 feet of water in the canal off S. Oneida street about 11 o'clock last night, two Appleton youths escaped death by breaking a window and clawing their way to the surface.

Merl Moderson, 21, 724 E. Wisconsin avenue, accompanied by Charles Hoeppner, 19, 604 E. Wisconsin avenue, was driving south on S. Oneida street when he passed a lighted barricade, smashed through the gate at the open draw bridge, and dropped into the canal, according to police.

The car landed on its top in the canal but Moderson broke a window, crawled out and reached the surface. He dove immediately to help his friend and in a moment they both were safe, suffering from shock but apparently unhurt.

The automobile, slightly damaged, was removed from the canal.

Expect Federal Judge to Receive High Court Post

Governor Murphy of Michigan Pays 'Social Visit' Aboard Yacht

Washington.—(AP)—Predictions that a federal judge will be promoted to fill the supreme court vacancy created by the death of Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes, are being made by Governor Frank Murphy of Michigan.

The forecast came from two high administration officials shortly before Murphy's scheduled arrival for a weekend cruise with President Roosevelt.

When he reached the capital, Murphy said he was paying merely a "social visit" and knew of no specific question which would be discussed on the presidential yacht.

The red-haired governor, before flying to his summer home, said the visit had no significance. Senator Brown (D-Mich.) earlier had said it was "entirely possible" a successor to Justice Van Devanter would be discussed.

Logical Selection
The administration officials, who preferred to remain anonymous, pointed out that four or five of the federal court circuits are not represented on the supreme bench. It would be logical, they indicated, to select a jurist from one of those circuits.

Judge Sam G. Bratton of New Mexico and Judge Joseph C. Hutcheson, Jr., of Texas have been mentioned in that category. Bratton is a former senator and Hutcheson once was mayor of Houston.

There were unconfirmed reports Attorney General Cummings had informed Mr. Roosevelt he could make a recess appointment after congress adjourns. The president said yesterday he had received the informal opinion but did not disclose its nature.

Mr. Roosevelt began his cruise on the yacht Potomac last night without waiting for Governor Murphy, who had telephoned the White House that the legislative session would delay him.

Murphy arranged to take a commercial plane to Washington this morning, reaching the yacht by a naval plane bearing mail to the president.

Investigate Reports Of Sales Tax Grafit

Detroit.—(AP)—State and Wayne county officials investigating reports of graft in connection with sales tax returns detained one man today while expressing doubt of the credibility of the reports.

Three field agents of the Detroit office of the sales tax department were questioned and released last night. The man detained for further investigation was identified as an employee of a Detroit contracting company.

Assistant Prosecutor Garfield A. Nichols and John C. Caban, Jr., manager of the Detroit sales tax office, declined to give the names of the field agents questioned or the man detained.

Nichols said the investigation indicated that "no money passed hands" in the reported incidents.

Report Revolt Spreads Among Rebel Troops

Madrid Claims Open Fighting in Progress in Insurgent Rearguard

BATTLING MUTINY
Franco's Aide Makes Absolute Denial of Government Dispatch

Henday, Franco-Spanish Frontier —(AP)—Spanish government sources asserted today that revolt was spreading through the insurgent rearguard.

They declared that discontent had mushroomed into open fighting within Generalissimo Francisco Franco's forces at Motril and Malaga, on the southern coast.

The outbreaks were said to be similar to that which the government previously reported within ancient Granada, another southern Spanish city.

The Fabra (Spanish) news agency in a dispatch from Gibraltar said that "bony explosions could be heard within the ancient city and that insurgent authorities were struggling desperately to localize the mutiny."

The agency said the Granada uprising came when Spanish soldiers were ordered from their barracks to make room for Italian volunteers under Franco's banner.

Denies Reports
A radio broadcast by General Quipriano Llano, one of Franco's chief aides, made an absolute denial of the Granada revolt reports.

In the same broadcast he hinted that Franco might be preparing for a new offensive toward beleaguered Madrid.

Government reports were that the revolt had extended also into Franco's Biscayan army. The defense ministry said government troops had heard a battle between the insurgent groups on the Santander front, in northern Spain.

Insurgent troops put an end to the conflict, it was said, when they roared overhead, machine gunning dropping bombs and throwing hand grenades.

Report 2,000 Prisoners
Insurgent general headquarters announced that 2,000 government militiamen had surrendered near Espiel in Cordoba province, where Franco's southern army is pressing to recover territory lost in the year.

Franco's communique said also that the death of a Russian general, identified as Vladimir Arubensky, reported two days ago, had been confirmed. The communique said the general had committed suicide to avoid capture after international troops were defeated a week ago at Brunete, west of Madrid.

His entire staff was captured and an entire international brigade wiped out, according to the official insurgent report.

Both the insurgent and government high commands today reported an insurgent victory in eastern Spain where Franco is trying to drive a wedge between Madrid and Valencia.

Troops Retreat
The government announcement said violent insurgent pressure on the boundary of Cuenca province, about 100 miles east of Madrid, supported by intensive shelling, had forced the Madrid-Valencia troops to retreat from positions at Terriente and Salodon.

The two villages are about 60 miles north of the Madrid-Valencia road toward which Franco's new offensive is aimed. Cutting off the road, the only direct line of communication between inland Madrid and coastal Valencia, temporary seat of the government, might be the deciding blow of the year-old civil war.

Without giving a specific location, the insurgent communique said the government attempted an attack on the Granada front, in southern Spain, which Franco's men repulsed, "putting the enemy to flight."

LaFollette Concedes Iowa Supremacy When He's 'Overawed' by Tall Corn

Des Moines, Iowa.—(AP)—Iowa won the tall corn derby today when Governor Nelson G. Krasschell's entry — 16 feet, 51 inches — towered more than 3 feet higher than the tall corn brought by Governor Philip LaFollette of Wisconsin to challenge Hawkeye supremacy.

The pride of Wisconsin measured only 13 feet, 11 inches — and Governor Krasschell's boast to the midwest was upheld.

Governor LaFollette graciously acknowledged Iowa's supremacy when it comes to tall corn, but presented Governor Krasschell with a 25-pound muskellunge, a 2,100-pound cheese and a 1,300-pound tub of butter as proof of Wisconsin's claims to superiority in other lines.

"I'm a little bit overawed by these stalks," Governor LaFollette declared as he looked up a lane of towering corn transplanted on the west steps of the Iowa statehouse for the occasion.

"This one looks like the Washington monument," he added as he walked up to the champion stalk brought to Des Moines this morning by Isaac Ogden, young Batavia, Iowa, farmer.

Grange Asks Pay-Hour Bill Recommittal on Eve of Senate Ballot

Asks Disciplinary Action Against 6 In Clash May 26

Judge Finds 'Dearborn Police Stood Passively By' in Fight

Detroit.—(AP)—Common Pleas Judge Ralph W. Liddy asked the Dearborn Safety commission today to discipline or remove a police inspector, a sergeant, three patrolmen and a police matron in connection with the fighting between Ford Motor Co. employees and United Automobile Workers on May 26.

Judge Liddy charged that U. A. W. members, attempting to distribute literature at the Ford Rouge plant gates, "were subjected to physical abuse and detention to an extent unheard of in this community within the last generation while the Dearborn police stood passively by."

The presentment added: "It is a marvel that no fatalities occurred." Judge Liddy conducted a one-man grand jury investigation which resulted in the indictment of eight men on assault charges in connection with the fighting.

Charges Neglect of Duty
The presentment charged the officers with "misfeasance and malfeasance of office and willful neglect of duty." Judge Liddy said the Dearborn Safety commission must try the accused officers on the charges.

Named in the presentment are Inspector Charles W. Slamer, Sergeant Jeff Dean of the mounted division, Patrolmen Allen E. Wassner, Fred Herman and Clarence Snider, and Police Matron Netta Hitchcock.

Judge Liddy charged that the matron "illegally, without knowing whether four women were arrested or not, searched their persons, their clothing, their pockets, their dresses, their pocketbooks and forced two of the women to disrobe for further searching."

Slamer is accused of ordering the matron to search the women, and also of participating in the "illegal arrest" of the four women and four men.

Inspector Slamer, according to the presentment, "made no attempt to apprehend participants" in the fighting.

Sergeant Dean and Patrolmen Wassner and Herman, according to the presentment, were present during the disturbance at the Ford gates and "contumaciously" neglected to prevent "violations of the law."

Injured in 1933
In 1933, Codona so seriously injured his shoulder in an act in New York that he never was able to make a comeback.

Codona had been in the garage business here recently, although he appeared in three films, once as a double for Johnny Weissmuller in a "Tarzan" picture.

Codona and Miss Lutz, also an aerial performer, were married at San Antonio, Texas, in 1932. She divorced him a month ago, charging cruelty.

Yesterday, they met at the lawyer's office. Miss Annie Bruce, Mrs. Codona's mother, said Codona asked her to leave with the attorney, but she remained.

Mrs. Bruce said Codona lighted a cigarette for her daughter and said: "Vera this is the only thing you have left for me to do."

Then he drew a pistol, shot her four times and fired into his own head, Mrs. Bruce said.

Mrs. Codona replaced Miss Lutz in the flying Codona troupe.

Interruption Debate On Pay-Hour Bill

Rushed Away by Guards After He Tries to Speak From Gallery

Washington.—(AP)—A stranger interrupted senate debate on the wage-hour bill today, shouting from the gallery that he wanted to be heard.

Guards immediately seized him and dragged him out, still shouting.

"I represent the unemployed, the poorly clothed and the poorly sheltered," the man shouted, as guards struggled to pull him out of the gallery. "I want to be heard on whether Green represents the working people or—"

His words were drowned out as a door-keeper clamped a hand on his mouth.

The "Green" he named presumably was William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor. Spitting with some other A. F. of L. leaders, Green has advocated passage of the wage-hour bill although saying it was not satisfactory in its present form.

The ejected speaker later said he was W. A. Maxwell, of Chicago, a representative of the American Federation of Unemployed, Aged and Handicapped.

It was recalled that he had staged a "one man hunger march" to Washington to testify at the hearings on the wage-hour bill in favor of a more drastic measure.

Indignant Phone Calls Bring Man's Release

Antigo, Wis.—(AP)—Ernie Frayer who was just too popular to be kept in jail.

Authorities locked him up Thursday, but they soon regretted it and changed their minds when they began receiving indignant phone calls.

"Imagine," exploded one woman, "locking up a man like Ernie! It's unthinkable."

"I should think you would be ashamed of yourself," complained another.

"I think you're mean. I don't know what we'll do if Ernie doesn't show up soon," a third wailed.

Authorities compromised and agreed Ernie could meet his public during the day, but remain in jail at night.

Ernie, you see, is Antigo's garbage collector.

Trapeze Artist Is Fatally Wounded; Ex-Mate Also Dead

Alfredo Codona Slays Self After Shooting Divorced Wife

Long Beach, Calif.—(AP)—Mrs. Vera Bruce Codona, 32, famed circus trapeze artist who was wounded in a double shooting here late yesterday, died today.

Death followed repeated operations and blood transfusions in the Seaside hospital here in an effort to save her life after she was shot three times, police said, by Alfredo Codona, her recently divorced husband and internationally known acrobat. She never regained consciousness.

Codona died instantly, a self-inflicted bullet wound in his head.

Codona, 43, first circus trapeze star ever to do the difficult triple somersault consistently, met Mrs. Codona and her mother, in a lawyer's office yesterday to discuss division of their property.

Codona was star performer of the "flying Codonas" family troupe which made several world tours.

Accidents killed Codona's second wife, Lillian Leitzel, and ruined his own trapeze career.

Miss Leitzel plunged to her death in Copenhagen in 1931 when a ring of her equipment snapped.

Objects to Proposed Broad Powers for Board

CONSIDER CHANGES

Administration Still Expects Passage of Measure

Washington.—(AP)—The senate voted today to substitute the Wheeler Johnson child labor bill today for child labor provisions of the administration's wage-hour bill. The vote was 56 to 29.

Washington.—(AP)—The National Grange, a leading farm organization, joined some labor representatives today in seeking recommitment of the administration's wage-hour bill.

Senators said Fred Breckenman, legislative representative of the Grange, had been urging them today to send the bill back to committee because of the broad powers it would confer on a board to fix minimum wages and maximum hours.

By agreement the senate was to vote at 2 p. m. (central standard time), and the Grange's influence was swayed at the eleventh hour against passage.

Just before voting began, the senate agreed to delay the recommitment ballot until after disposal of all amendments.

Opening the balloting, the senate voted 59 to 25 to accept an amendment by Senator Borah (R-Ida.) to exempt from hours regulation the employees of cooperative dairies.

Although William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, had come out for approval of the bill, some of the labor organizations' representatives were still urging senators to side-track it.

Despite the powerful combination of opponents, administration leaders still insisted they had enough votes to pass the bill.

Amendments Rejected
As it approached the voting hour, the senate considered a batch of comparatively minor amendments, rejecting most of them.

Most important of the earlier amendments was one by Senator McCarran (D-Nev.) to bar foreign goods produced by low standard labor. It was defeated, 53 to 27, as a similar amendment by Senator Lodge (R-Mass.) has been two days ago.

Senator Connally (D-Texas) made the formal motion to return the bill to committee in the midst of spirited debate over amendments.

The chair ruled there should be a vote on the motion before votes on other amendments. Should Connally's recommitment motion prevail, a direct vote on an anti-lynching measure, offered by Senator Cope-land (D-N.Y.) as an amendment, would be avoided.

Before the motion, the senate rejected a proposal to exempt from its provisions employees paid on a commission basis.

LaFollette's View
Opposing the amendment, Senator LaFollette (D-Wis.) said its adoption might "provide a device whereby employers may take themselves out from under the act."

Senator McCarran (D-Nev.), who proposed barring imports produced under labor standards lower than those of domestic industry, asserted, "dairy products from abroad are virtually tearing down the dairy industry of this country."

"Why should American labor be required to compete with workers

Los Angeles.—(AP)—Roy G. Ward, 34, was held here today as a suspect in the murder of Alfred "Snake" Lingle, Chicago newspaper reporter in 1930.

Body of 'Wild Man Of Woods' Is Taken From Small Lake

Rhineland.—(AP)—Sheriff Hans Rodd said today he was "absolutely convinced" that the body of a man found in a small lake near here yesterday was that of Oneida county's "wild man of the woods" sought by authorities several weeks.

The body was identified as that of John Wason, alias John Ruitton, who left a transient camp at Hayward two months ago. He was buried in a nearby field today.

Hayward camp officials said the man had no relatives and no home address. Authorities said persons who saw him alive identified the body as that of the "wild man of the woods."

He was given that name because of his strange actions and weird shouts. He was seen at various intervals at several points in the eastern part of Oneida county, at one time attempted to stab Leon Lawrence, Rhineland youth, on a lonely road.

Paper Institute Attracts Visitors From Entire World

Visitors from every state in the union and from foreign countries throughout nearly the entire world have visited the Institute of Paper Chemistry here during the last six years, records at the institute office show.

Since the main building was opened in October, 1931, a record has been kept of visitors there for any purpose, and about 8,000 signatures are on file now.

Residence data reveals that the visitors came from not only the United States but from Canada, China, Australia, New Zealand, and all of the principal countries of Europe and of Central and South America.

The lists include parties which have been shown through the institute at various times, but the largest single group in the 8,000 is made up of persons connected with or definitely interested in the paper industry.

County Corn Crop Badly in Need of Rain, Agent Says

Oat Yield Good With Barley Showing Wide Variation

Corn crops in Outagamie county, better than normal for a time, now are badly in need of rain. R. C. Swanson, county agricultural agent, stated today. Stalks are tassling out prematurely in many fields, he said, but rain within a few days may improve the situation considerably.

The oat crop generally is good, Swanson stated. Harvesting has been completed on many farms and pre-threshing estimates of yield run as high as 50 bushels to an acre.

In contrast, the barley crop is showing wide variation. In some fields in the northeastern part of the county the yield is not expected to exceed 15 bushels to an acre. In other areas a considerably heavier production is anticipated. Generally, however, the oat yield is better than barley.

Damage to crops by grasshoppers and other pests has been considerable in scattered areas but the total loss has been less than in many other Wisconsin counties.

Scouts Make Interesting Hike Along Wolf River

Gardner Dam—An adventurous group of scouts went on the explorers hike down river under the leadership of Carlisle Runge. They crossed the creek running through the lower swamp and inspected the outlet rather thoroughly, because this is the creek that the fishermen in the camp claim never fails them when they want a mess of brook trout. The only drawback is that the deeper one follows the stream up through the swamp, the thicker the mosquitoes are.

They then located the trail leading to the highway, spread the map of the 1,400 acre campsite out, and discussed the boundaries of the property. Some time was spent in learning how to use the compass in connection with maps.

Fishing Popular They also investigated the bass hole that is becoming quite popular with the fly fishermen, and discovered a fine swimming hole. They then hiked down past the second bend forced the river and returned to camp on the west river trails. During the hike they saw numerous deer tracks and scared up a number of partridge.

The exploring campers were Bill Lawson, Tom McCarthy, Charles Oik, Jack Flanagan, Timm McCarthy, Cliff Hammond, Duane Tretin, Bud Trace, Dean Collar and Jim Schweers. The hikers pronounced the hike to be one of the most interesting of the week.

The weather warmed up sufficiently so that the first raft hike of the week could get underway. Gordon Meier, John Trautman, Bill Lawson, Royal McGill Bud Bevers, Tom Kolasinski, Don Hoks, Hugh Hohen, Harry Braun, Harold Laux, Bob McCauley, Tom Loesch, Sam Atcherson, Owen Brown, Ken Wolff, Chas and Ellsworth Hemingway, Jim Eckrick, and Jack Flanagan, were the hikers led by Bob Schroeder and Bob Beachkofski. It was a rather wet group of scouts who steered the rafts they had assembled upriver down to the upper suspension bridge to get into camp in time for supper. They all hurried to their cabins for dry clothes and got to their places in the mess hall when the last bell had rung.

Elect Officers Camp number one took over the program when they decided that the campers should hold the various camp offices. A nominating committee was appointed which suggested candidates for the various camp jobs.

Ray Thomas and Timm McCarthy were the nominees for camp director, with George Meier and Don Smith running for the assistant director's position.

Dick Marx and Bud Thomas were selected for athletic director with John Zwicker and Royal McGill looking for votes as swimming instructor.

Carlton Tretin and Ernest Schroeder were the two campers nominated for handicraft instructor, while Bob Bolinski and Eugene McGill were on the list for the trade.

The steward's job was sought by Jack Flanagan and Jim Christensen.

There were eight aspirants for the dishwashing posts with Sam Atcherson, Don Rosenberg, Owen Brown, John Wiekand, Bud Trace, Duane Tretin, Bill Van Lieshout, and Don Killoren seeking the vacancies.

Commissary Clerk Two brothers, Bill and Dick Ferron, were in the running for commissary clerk with Tom McCarthy opposing Bill Lawson for the riding master's job.

At the campfire that evening the various candidates gave their campaign speech and promises. Timm McCarthy promised a New Deal at Gardner Dam when he advocated escalators for all upper bunks, street car services to all cabins, lunches at all hours, and other features, if he were elected to the office of camp director.

Ray Thomas, his opponent, ridiculed Timm's platform when he urged more conservativeness and lower taxes.

Apparently the New Deal was to suffer another serious setback, because Conservative Ray Thomas led his ticket in the balloting that followed the campfire. A regular political rally was held by the successful candidates.

Assistent Director George Meier took the post of assistant director, with Bud Thomas as Athletic director and Royal McGill as swimming instructor. The successful handicraft instructor was Ernest Schroeder with Jack Flanagan polling the highest number of votes for steward. Bob Bolinski was named trading post manager. The successful dishwashers were Don Rosenberg, Owen Brown, Bud Trace, and Don Killoren.

The commissary clerk was Bill Ferron and the riding master Tom McCarthy.

Wire Operators Praised For Courtesy, Efficiency

BY WESTBROOK FEGLER New York—If anyone should ask me to select the most courteous, efficient and conscientious class of workers that I have ever met I would have to name the telegraph operators, with whom I have had much traffic here and there in the last 25 years. It is my impression that they are not overpaid to any fantastic extent, but I have seen them working in the rain and sleet, with the water dripping off their hats and brims, and have often kept them overtime for no other reason than to get their work done, and do not recall ever hearing a grumble.

Curiously, now that I put my mind to it, I recall the names of only a very few, and most of those few were fellow employees in the press association business, working in the same shop day after day. Out on assignments in the sport business, however, I have worked with dozens, maybe hundreds of telegraphers, Western Union and Postal, and came to know some of them very well, but somehow we didn't go for names.

There was a man in New York who used to work Western Union wires at the games and fights—a sick-looking man with hollow, thin features, who collapsed at the ringside in the Yankee stadium one night. There is always great tension along the working press rows at those big championship fights, and probably my friend shouldn't have been there at all. But he was there, jiggling his bug beside me on the shelf until suddenly, just as the main event went into the ring, he passed the word to the head man that he was about to

So the head man quietly moved another operator into his place and we let him out, and the first I knew of being ill was when it was all over and I was boxing up my typewriter along toward midnight. I had thought it was just a routine switch, but the relief man told me our friend was an invalid and had passed out in the aisle.

Bobbs Up Skinner Than Ever I didn't see him again until one of those miserably cold Army-Notre Dame days in the fall, when he bobbed up, skinnier than ever, to sit four or five hours, shivering like a homeless dog, and rattling his bug with fingers blue from the cold.

At Harvard, Yale and Princeton a decade ago the athletic management liked to kid themselves with the fiction that football was strictly a game in the Big Three. They refused to roof over their press coops up on the rims of the arenas on the ground that this concession to the comfort of the Fourth estate would suggest that they were currying favor with the press with a view to publicity and gate receipts.

The truth was that they knew they could command the publicity and receipts anyway. This policy continued until the professional football schools began to outscore the Big Three both in lineage and money. Then they all built roofs and windbreaks and put in electric lights.

Those were terrible days in the open, and worst of all, in Boston in Harvard-Yale years, because the dark comes down early there and the arctic winter has set in by the time of the big game, as they still call it. After the games in Boston, the Western Union chief would bring out a couple of barn lanterns and some of us would carry pocket flash lamps, but you can't hold a flash, play a typewriter and comb through a lot of snowbound, wind-blown notes to find out how Yale did at single, and I hardly know that touchdown in the first quarter.

Burned Matches To Warm Fingers The telegraph operators burned matches to warm their fingers and see the copy and sometimes they would set fire to newspapers. The chief operator used to bring a couple of quarts of bottled moford rum, home-made from molasses, and it tasted like liquid soap, but it was very warming.

But after the work was over and you moved into the hot, close atmosphere of the hotel dining room or the train for home the rum would hit you like a falling gargoyle and sometimes all would go blank.

I never have understood the marvelous efficiency of the operators and the wire chiefs in maintaining the service in the open air in bad weather, or even indoors in the great halls where the national political conventions are running and

Black-Connery Bill Involves Many Problems

Small Wonder Labor Is Divided Over Measure, Lawrence Says

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington—Small wonder that there's division in the ranks of the American Federation of Labor over the possible passage of the Corcoran-Cohen wage and hour bill, sometimes referred to as the Black-Connery bill. For if the measure passes there will be relatively little use for labor unions.

is going to assure minimum wages and maximum hours per week? What else is there for a labor union to do but to get better wages and hours for its dues-paying members? Likewise, if the minimum wage is established by law and a government board has to take into consideration economic factors, will not a simple amendment subsequently give over to the same federal board the task of regulating hours and wages for all other groups of employees?

The wage and hour bill is based on splendid intentions and is the result of a campaign pledge, given in the generosity of campaign days. President Roosevelt feels he must go ahead and arrange for minimum wages and maximum hours by federal statute instead of leaving it to the states. Unfortunately, the move is so far-reaching and touches so many industries that it may result in unemployment and possibly some cuts in wages for those in the groups above the minimum.

Recognize Danger

The mere fact that the proposed federal board, which, with its supposed omniscience, is to settle satisfactorily all questions arising out of the proposed legislation, is to be instructed by congress to move cautiously and to be sure to avoid curtailing earning power is a sign that the framers of the act knew they were treading on dangerous ground.

The proposed law, for instance, commands the board to arrange for the maximum of 40 hours a week and minimum of 40 cents an hour "as rapidly as is economically feasible," which is a pretty broad generalization.

The measure raises some interesting questions of economic equality, especially in the south. Likewise, it is full of jokers already on the matter of exempting agricultural labor. The federal board is to determine when cotton ginned on a farmer's own property means he can pay labor any price he pleases, whereas, when taken to a processing establishment which makes a business of cotton ginning, another wage scale is to prevail.

Then there's the question of what constitutes a "seasonal" peak. Certain occupations like fishing and canning are exempted. Senators have been piling on amendments in the nature of special privileges for citizens of their own states so that the bill is already a hodge-podge of inconsistencies.

Opposition

Southern opposition to the bill is rather intense and there is some ground for the belief that, even though the bill may pass the senate, it may slumber in conference till next January. Undoubtedly, a minimum wage and hour bill will tend to increase the purchasing power of some groups, but it will be at the expense of other groups.

It will naturally tend to force prices upward, but it may well be argued that government regulation of wages and hours may possibly be done on much more scientific basis than is possible when the C. I. O. with government encouragement, uses its economic power to force prices upward irrespective of whether the consumers can pay the higher costs or the business owners can absorb them.

So far as a regulated economy is concerned, the pending wage and hour bill is an initial step of major proportions, perhaps more important than the NRA because the element of code making of differentials is eliminated and one government board is to do all the work that all the codes put together tried to do heretofore.

Broad Powers

The bill is full of broad delegations of power which seem to be plainly invalid, but the feeling of most members who intend to vote for the measure is that something is better than nothing. There is still the little matter of determining what companies or firms are engaged in local or intra-state business and what ones are interstate and hence subject to the proposed law. But confusion never deters the New Deal legislators. Their hope is that somehow all these reforms will be digested and that everything will come out all right in the end, even if it takes another depression or panic to bring about a few more drastic changes in the whole economic system.

One major question has gone unanswered in the debate. What is going to happen to the persons who really cannot earn the minimum wage and who will be displaced by younger workers? The suggested law attempts to take care of them by providing that the federal board may issue orders for the employment of "persons whose earning capacity is impaired by age or physical or mental deficiency or injury," under special licenses to be issued by the board, at wages lower than the applicable wage and for such period as shall be fixed by the "license."

Where are these people going to get the money to hire lawyers or lobbyists to go to Washington to get them special licenses? The probabilities are that many of these persons will wind up on the relief

Nagan, Koehne Win High School Doubles Title

Kaukauna — Robert Nagan and Arthur Koehne became the Kaukauna High school tennis doubles champions yesterday as they defeated Leland Lambie and Robert Cooper two out of three sets in matches played at the library courts. The results were 2-6, 6-0, 6-2.

The new champions spent the entire first set to solve Bob Cooper's size 10 shoe, and failed to make their shots count, dropping many in the net and missing the end lines by inches. They came back strong in the second set to blank their opponents 6-0 and to sweep through the third set.

Koehne's brilliant play at the net more than counterbalanced Cooper's service in the last sets, as the carrot-topped netter stopped everything at close range and drove the runners-up to the back court to keep the game on the defensive. Nagan's forehand smashes from the back court kept Lambie, dangerous at the net, away from the front line. The winning combination are seniors, graduated in June, and their opponents juniors.

Kaukauna members of the Brotherhood of Andrew and Phillip of the Immanuel Evangelical and Reformed church will attend the annual brotherhood picnic to be held Sunday afternoon and evening at the Mission House campus, near Plymouth. A sunset service will be conducted in the evening.

KAUKAUNA PERSONALS

Kaukauna — A visit to Canada to see the Dionne quintuplets will be on the itinerary of Miss Lottie McCarty, who will leave tomorrow with a party of Green Bay friends for a vacation trip east. The group will enter Canada at Sault Ste. Marie, and make stops at St. Anne de Beauce, and Quebec. They will also visit New York City. Accompanying Miss McCarty will be Misses Mary and Irene Scanlan and Mrs. Nora Scanlan, Green Bay.

Leonard Sager will return to Waukegan tomorrow, after spending a week with his parents here. Miss Lorraine Hanselman, Dale, is visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Cleland this week. Miss Hanselman is a classmate of Miss Harriet Cleland at the University of Wisconsin.

Miss Betty Biese is spending a few days visiting relatives at Fond du Lac.

Mrs. John Van De Loo and family will return tomorrow after spending a 2-weeks' vacation at rolls and will lose their jobs as well as their morale. But the New Deal believes that a certain amount of cruelty and hardship is necessary to all reforms. Here, in air-cooled, comfortable New Deal offices, there is much prattle about the "ill-housed, ill-nourished, and ill-clad," but at best only a political sympathy and not a realistic appreciation of the immensity of the whole problem.

Lambie's Team Wins From Powers' Squad

Kaukauna — Lee Lambie's team looked like the powerhouse in the new Senior Boys' Basketball league as they defeated Sherman Powers' team 24-7 in the first game of a twin bill at the library court yesterday morning. Willet Ranquette's team defeated Jim Sanders' squad in the second game 8-3.

Cliff Vaneehoven took scoring honors for the Lambie outfit, garnering five baskets while his teammate George Hatchell sunk four. Floyd Stegeman paced the Powers outfit with two, plus a free throw. Bill Alger got four of Ranquette's eight points in the other game.

Merchants Win From Taverns in Loop Game, 13-2

South Side Aggregation Remains in Race for Second Half Title

Kaukauna — The South Side Merchants kept themselves in the running in the Twilight Softball league when they defeated the Ritz Taverns last night 13-2.

The Merchants used just 11 hits to get their overwhelming score, but they bunched the safeties and capitalized on the five errors made by the Ritz boys. The losers almost matched them at the plate with 10 hits, but they never got hits when they counted, as the winners tightened up in their fielding to stop probable rallies.

The Merchants put themselves on the blue side of the ledger with two hits in the first inning on two tallies in a walk. Four runs pushed over in the third put the game on ice though only two hits were combined with errors and walks to do the trick. Three more in the fourth and two each in the fifth and sixth made the total 13.

Both pitchers turned in good jobs, the winner, Powers, allowing 10 hits, walking 1, and striking out 1. Ed Jaki got five outs, walked six and allowed eleven hits.

Chance at Title

The win gives the Merchants a .665 standing in the league and a possible shot at the second round bunting, as they still have a chance to knock off Pantry Lunches, winners of the first round, who are still undefeated in the second round.

Play continues Monday as the Pantries meet the new Thilmany Mill Office squad, who are replacing the Kenke team, which withdrew after one game of the second half of the season was played. Managers of other league teams agreed to play the back games of the Kenke schedule with the office crew, so that the new team will have a fair chance at the flag, without entering the league with several defeats chalked up against it.

Workmen Finish Concrete on New U. S. Highway 41

Expect Road Will be Opened to Traffic Within A Few Weeks

Kaukauna — Paving of the main road of the new Highway 41 between Appleton and McCarty's crossing, north of the city, was finished today as equipment moved into Kaukauna from the north and met the section of the concrete laid first at a point near Maloney road.

Today is the end of six weeks that have been spent in pouring approximately 104 miles of new road which will give motorists a straight highway to Appleton on the north side of the Chicago and North Western railroad tracks. About two more weeks of paving remain, as short roadways must be laid connecting the new highway with the old 41, according to C. A. Hurligen, engineer of the Weymouth Construction company, Milwaukee, which is in charge of the job.

No paving will be done at the meeting of the old and new highways just north of McCarty's crossing, since the state highway department is working on plans to continue with new pavement as far as the Brown county line. In the meantime the several blocks of road unpaved at the meeting place will probably be surfaced with a temporary gravel or black top.

Ahead of Schedule

Work is far ahead of schedule, Hurligen said, as there was not a day lost because of bad weather. A construction company must figure on at least two weeks of bad weather on a job like this, the engineer explained. There was one half day when they did not pave. That was when the company moved their supply station from Appleton to Kaukauna.

Concrete was laid at the rate of from 1,650 to 1,700 feet a day, or a mile in three days. Record run of the job was 2,026 feet laid in 14 hours. Normally the company worked 12 hours a day, with two shifts of six hours each, working six days a week.

About 180 men were employed on the job, and of these 140 were from Outagamie county. Forty skilled workmen were brought along with the company.

The road itself is a 20-foot highway, and the concrete is nine inches thick at the sides and six and a half in the center. Grading is being done by the Weymouth men, and about six more weeks of that work remains, as the shoulders are built at the rate of a mile in a week.

Concrete must cure for two weeks before traffic is permitted on it, but sections of the road on the west end of the job will be opened to motorists when grading is finished and the side road connections built in, the engineer said.

Sox Defeat Pirates

In Hardball Game, 22-4

Kaukauna — Nick Steffens' Sox turned the tables on the top notch Pirates, led by Junior Egan, by slugging them to defeat, 22-4, in a hardball game played at the library grounds yesterday morning. The game gave the Sox a tie with the Tigers for first place in the boys' junior league.

Good Progress Is Being Made With New High School

Half of Concrete Work on Second Floor Is Completed

Fifty per cent of the concrete on the second floor of the new high school has now been poured, according to A. J. Lytel, architect's superintendent. The walls of the boiler house also been completed. The brick work on the gymnasium has been finished to the third floor, and work will start on the third floor next week. Work also will be started on the brick for the boiler house. It is expected that more men will be taken on shortly. "As soon as the structural work upon the second floor and the boiler house is completed," said Mr. Lytel, "from 50 to 75 bricklayers will be hired."

The steel work on the gymnasium is about half done, while the electrical conduit system on the first floor of the academic section and in the gymnasium has been finished. The cementing of the second floor will be completed about the middle of next week, and work will again continue on the cafeteria, the construction of which has been delayed because needed materials have not arrived, Mr. Lytel explained.

The gymnasium floor has been completed but for the tile itself, which will be laid late this fall. All steel work on the gymnasium has been finished. As yet no interior work of any sort on any of the three sections has been done.

Two of the three huge boilers arrived at the building site Friday and are awaiting installation. A system of steam pipes has been sunk into the concrete above the coal bin to facilitate delivery of coal. The large bin will hold about three carloads of fuel, or 150 tons, it is estimated.

The back of the gymnasium has been planned so that swimming pool may be added at any time in the future.

Above Requirements
Mr. Lytel said the concrete slabbing on the second floor of the academic section was far above requirements, saying "A load pressure of 2,500 pounds to the square inch is required, while the floor tests from 4,000 to 5,000 pounds to the square inch."

The injury record on the project to date has been very good. There have been minor scratches or bruises reported with no serious accidents of any nature.

"We are about a month behind our construction schedule," said Mr. Lytel. "Strikes and the failure of materials to arrive on time caused this. Weather has interfered very little."

Attorney General To Fight Water Diversion Bill

Badger Congressmen Opposing Measure Proposed by Illinois

Madison—The office of the Wisconsin attorney general, Orland S. Loomis, prepared this week to fight a bill in the house of representatives in Washington which, if passed, would make it possible for the state of Illinois to withdraw 5,000 cubic feet per second of water, in addition to all domestic dumpage, from the waters of Lake Michigan into the Chicago river.

Introduced by Congressman McAndrews of the ninth Illinois district, the bill is supposed to improve the navigability of the Illinois Lake-to-Gulf Waterway. Lake Michigan water would be diverted into the Chicago river, then flow in the current of the waterway, including the Chicago Sanitary and Ship Canal, the Illinois river, the Mississippi, and discharging into the Gulf of Mexico.

In a letter received by Congressman George J. Schneider in Washington today, Loomis asked that Wisconsin members of congress oppose vigorously the enactment of the McAndrews proposal. "Considerable time, effort, and money was spent by Wisconsin and other lake states in the legal battle which terminated in a favorable decision by the United States supreme court," which prevented a previous attempt at diversion of Lake Michigan water and lowering of the lake level, Loomis told Schneider.

That United States supreme court decision, said Loomis, "determining the equities in the controversy, and now through propaganda, efforts are being made to undo all that was accomplished by the lake states in protecting their interests."

Loomis requested Schneider to help to defeat the bill because of "the great effect this legislation will have upon Wisconsin."

'Men in Exile' Stars Dick Purcell and June Travis

At this time few places are left from which criminals cannot be extradited—and these are over run with men wanted for every crime from embezzlement to murder.

"Men in Exile," the first National melodrama showing at the Elite Theatre, on Monday and Tuesday, Bargain Days, is laid in one of these spots in the Caribbean sea. The settings are said to be entirely out of the beaten track of movie tradition and the lives of the characters are naturally colored by the bizarre nature of the environment. The daily routine of the people, their habits of life, their constant and suspicious vigils set them apart from citizens of other communities.

Dick Purcell plays an innocent murder suspect who flees to Caribbea. Criminals who have sought refuge here try to draw him into their net.

Even in this queer corner of the globe, romance is not barred.

He meets June Travis, daughter of the hotel-keeper, and their love story is interwoven with the perils in which they find themselves.

'King, Chorus Girl' Is Booked at Elite

A new star, with a genius for quiet comedy and high voltage romance, flashes on the cinema horizon!

He is Fernand Gravet, screen idol of the Continent, whose first American picture, "The King and the Chorus Girl," opens at the Elite Theatre for 3 days starting next Wednesday.

In "The King and the Chorus Girl," Mervyn LeRoy's first picture as a producer for Warner Bros., M. Gravet plays the role of wealthy, spendthrift ex-king Alfred VII who tumbles madly in love with an independent little American chorus girl, portrayed by Joan Blondell.

The king loves the chorus girl, she turns up her nose at him, and the merry, mad fun is on.

Edward Everett Horton is magnificently humorous as the worried uncle of the profligate king, as is Mary Nash, the veteran comedienne, as his aunt. The cast is studied with noted names—Luis Albern, Alan Mowbray, Jane Wyman, Kenny Baker of radio fame and many others.

Comedy Experts Stud 'Ever Since Eve'

A great cast of comedy experts make "Ever Since Eve," a Cosmopolitan production, coming to the Appleton Theater next week Friday, one of the summer season's best events. Starred are Marion Davies and Robert Montgomery, but those show stealers are back again, and you'll be in stitches over Patsy Kelly, Frank McHugh, Louise Fazenda, Allen Jenkins and Carol Hughes. Marion is a stage worker by day, with a brunette wig work, and for Bob a novelist who is crazy about blondes, so he hires brunette Marion to work for him so he can keep his mind on his work, but at night the blonde Marion takes him thru the paces in a modern Garden of Eden, and oh boy, does she raise Cain.

The second feature on this double feature bill which plays at the Appleton starting Friday, teams Sally Eilers and Ricardo Cortez in suspenseful-mystery drama, "Talk of the Devil."

Bob Allen Starred in New Western Picture

"Law of the Ranger," Columbia's colorful action drama of the west, featuring Bob Allen in one of the hard-riding, hard-fighting roles for which he is becoming noted, will be the new screen attraction at the Elite theater today and Sunday.

Bob is an under-cover State Ranger who sets out to defeat the law-breaking scheme of a band of criminals. Opposing the outlaws is a valiant newspaper editor, aided by his daughter, played by Miss Shepard. They welcome Bob as an ally to their cause.

The story develops into a thrilling race involving Bob, Elaine and the villainous leader of the gang to obtain valuable homestead rights. The plot races to a pulsing conclusion in which Bob rides and fights his way out of a treacherous ambush, and at the last moment brings in the State Rangers to help him save Elaine's rights.

STRIKES ZOOMING

Tokyo (U)—Strikes and labor disputes are increasing alarmingly in Japan. Home Office statistics show. In the first five months of this year controversies totalled 1,229, against some 700 for the corresponding period last year.

It is noticeable that in recent labor disputes employers have been more ready than before to make concessions and labor rarely has resorted to violence.

More than 60 per cent of the total represent demands for increases in wages or discharge allowances on the ground of the rise in living costs.

$4,000,000 BRIDGE

Hankow, China (U)—Bridge construction work, which in China has lagged far behind the building of new highways and railroads, is being pushed. A steel span across the Yangtze river at Hankow is planned.

The bridge will connect the Canton-Hankow and the Peiping-Hankow railways and will cost more than $4,000,000.

BOARD TO MEET

Members of the Appleton Public Library board will hold a monthly meeting at 4 o'clock next Tuesday afternoon at the library office. Usual business will be considered and reports heard.

FUN PROVIDER IN 'EVER SINCE EVE'

Evergreen Woods Offers Great Variety of Plants

BY CLARA HUSSONG

Often we think we know a certain flowery nook well, but if we neglect it for a few years and then pay it a visit at an odd season, other than has been our custom, the place often has surprise for us.

A little more than a month ago I was given several yellow lady's slippers and wild ferns for my "wild flower garden," which, until then, had existed only in my imagination. As both ferns and lady's slippers do better in somewhat shady grounds I decided to use the narrow strip of ground between the foundation and the sidewalk on the north side of the house.

The ground was hard clay and although a generous amount of black loam accompanied each wild plant it was not enough to give the plants a good start in their new home. Having occasion to drive to my parents' home at Pound, in Marinette county, we decided to get more wood loam from some suitable spot in that locality.

Variety of Ferns

A low cedar wood about a mile from my parents' farm seemed to hold the greatest possibilities and we drove there with a spade and containers for the soil. Neither my sister, who accompanied me, nor I had visited this place for years and we were curious as to what sort of plants grew in the shade of the cedars.

The variety of ferns caught our eyes first of all. In the tall grass at the edge of the wood we found lady ferns growing pale green and tall. Early in the summer this fern is beautiful but a little later it becomes ragged and broken, some of the fronds appearing to be partly devoured by some insect. Because of this tendency to lose their beauty by mid-summer lady ferns are not well suited for planting in gardens.

Other ferns grew there too: Crested shield in the swampy spots, berry bladder and oak fern among the mosses at the foot of trees or beside a fallen log, and common wood ferns on every knoll. We dug up a few of these ferns and placed them with the soil in the containers. Later they were planted with the other wild plants and now, six weeks later, I can report that the crested shield is doing the best of any, sending out several new fronds within the last two weeks. The delicate bladder fern and the oak fern are not progressing at all, in fact, barely staying alive.

Besides the ferns we found several wild flowers, bunch berry or dwarf dogwood, star flower, which was just beginning to lose its pointed white petals, and some late violets. In a moist shady corner we found some yellow clematis, and growing right beside them, a clump of yellow lady's slippers in full bloom. This surprised and delighted us so much we began looking for more and were fortunate to find several more clumps.

Found Poison Sumac

We raced from one clump to another, expressing our delight at finding these flowers in a spot in which we had never expected to see them. After we had looked and exclaimed to our heart's content we discovered that all this while we had been wading waist deep in poison sumac. We must have brushed against it hundreds of times. At home we washed thoroughly with hot water and strong

'Willie Winkle' Stars Shirley

Young Actor Coming to Rio Theater in Her Latest Picture

Marking the beginning of a new phase in Shirley Temple's screen career, "Wee Willie Winkle," the famous Rudyard Kipling story of India, opens Friday at the Rio Theater.

The curly-headed child star, who has been acclaimed as the No. 1 boxoffice attraction of both America and England, has a highly dramatic role, the strongest supporting cast of any of her screen successes, and the most elaborate production accorded one of her films.

Shirley's co-star in "Wee Willie Winkle" is Victor McLaglen, himself an Academy Award winner, and the supporting cast includes C. Aubrey Smith, June Lang, Michael Whalen, Cesar Romero, Constance Collier and young Douglas Scott, among many others.

For the production, two Indian forts were constructed as a location site thirty-five miles from the studio. One is a native fort and the other headquarters for a Highlander regiment recruited and trained for action in the picture. Numerous scenes required the use of many hundreds of extras, and for one eye-filling sequence the colorful native life of Peshawar, India, was reproduced, even to camel caravans and elephants with tapestried howdahs.

On the same program is Universal's exciting railway drama, "West Bound Limited." The picture, filmed with the cooperation of one of the largest railway systems in the West, was made on location some four hundred miles north of Hollywood in the hilly country near Santa Cruz, California.

Lyle Talbot and Polly Rowles will be seen in the featured roles. Talbot as a station operator unjustly accused of criminal negligence, and Miss Rowles as the girl he loves.

Thrilling features of the picture are the action of a runaway train as it roars down a mountain grade and a spectacular smash-up between a freight and a passenger train.

Hollywood News And Gossip

BY ROBBIN COONS

Hollywood—Today's one-column playlet, "Nothing But the Truth," stars Miss Claudette Colbert.

The scene is a movie set whereon Miss Colbert is starring, with Charles Boyer in a thing called "Tovarich" which requires that Miss Colbert wear a blonde wig, a patched dress, impoverished shoes and silk stockings with runs as long as "Tovarich" enjoyed on the stage.

Miss Colbert is between scenes when our curtain rises. The time is midnight. The extras (in the background) are nibbling their midnight snacks. Enter interviewer, brightly, "What's new?"

Miss C: "With me? What could be new?"

He: "Nothing's happened to you?"

Miss C: "Nothing. I haven't bought a house or a car or a dog. I know no new recipes. I'm not quitting the screen for the stage. I've had no odd presents from fans. No fan letters from Abyssinia. And I don't collect stamps."

He: "Makes it difficult, doesn't it?"

Miss C: "I have runs in my stockings—she displays ankles, and nice, and there are three ex-klings on the set—well, here I have to have none. Oh, well. We could say a light lift down and hit Mr. Litvak. On my last picture somebody wrote that a light nearly hit me."

He: "But Anton Litvak might not like it."

Miss C: "I don't suppose he would. Then let's say I've worn out 18 pairs of shoes in three nights dancing on these cobblestones."

He: "Too many shoes. Couldn't make it more than two pairs?"

Miss C: "Then does this set remind me of France—the little village where I was born?"

He: "No, you were born in Paris."

JEAN HARLOW'S LAST WORK SHOWS HERE

Thrills, laughs, drama and romance mingle in a literal cross section of American racing life in "SARATOGA," Jean Harlow's last picture. Clark Gable is co-starred, and the supporting cast includes Lionel Barrymore, Una Merkel, Frank Morgan, and Cliff Edwards. The picture opened to record-breaking crowds yesterday at the Rio theater. It will play through Tuesday.

The added feature on the same program is "Born Reckless," starring Rochelle Hudson, Brian Donlevy, and Barton MacLane.

343 Auto Deaths in State Since Jan. 1

Only 13 Counties Avoid Accident Fatalities in 6-Month Period

The death toll of Wisconsin traffic accidents reached 343 in the first six months of this year and left only 13 counties with records of no fatalities since Jan. 1, according to state highway commission records. Outagamie county, with 14 deaths, is one of 12 counties which account for 199 of the state's traffic deaths this year.

Counties reporting no traffic deaths in the first six months were Ashland, Clark, Crawford, Door, Florence, Green, Lake, LaFayette, Marquette, Pepin, Polk, Trempealeau, Washburn and Waushara. Vilas, Bayfield, Rusk, Richland and Grant, reported their first fatalities in June.

The state total for the 6-month period represents an increase of 19 per cent over the figure of 288 for the corresponding period of 1936.

Start Canning String Bean Crop Next Week

Canning of string beans will be started early next week at the Furberham Canning Co. It is not expected that the crop will be up to normal, unless some rain is had. The canning of beans will continue until the fall frosts. Carrots also will be canned.

—and this set is part of the Montmartre.

Miss C: "I'm just trying to help." (Persevering rally.) "You could say I'm wearing my grandmother's dress in this picture. You could say I wear it in every picture."

He: "It's too modern."

Miss C: "But it's old and patched. Look at the patches."

He: "Besides it wouldn't be the truth."

Miss C: "The dress is pink. My grandmother loved pink. That makes it nearly true."

He: "Er—maybe I'd better get something else."

Miss C: "I've got it. I've been spending weeks in a beauty shop under an assumed name, learning how to arrange madame's coiffure in the picture."

He: "Have you?"

Miss C: "You still want truth?"

He: (nods.)

Miss C: "Then you've got me. The only thing I really know is that I'm cold. And that isn't news."

Cast as Fighting District Attorney

Richard Dix to Play Lead In "The Devil Is Driving"

Two perfectly contrasted features open Tuesday at the Appleton Theatre for a three day showing.

In "The Devil Is Driving," Richard Dix is cast as a fighting District Attorney, in a dynamic story, filled with thrills. He won his post thru political influence when he defended and freed a rich young wastrel of a drunken driving charge. To reclaim the love of Joan Perry, he wages a relentless war on reckless drivers, to soon again find the youth involved in an automobile accident fatal to a young girl. This brings him face to face with the climax of his career, and you'll never guess the outcome. But it ends superbly... and you will agree that it is a dramatic picture of rare intensity and action.

In the second feature, "Talent Scout" you are reminded of the coast to coast airplane trip of the flying "Goldiggers" of 1936, one of their stops being nearby Milwaukee. One of the flying beauties, Jeanne Madden, appeared with Dick Powell in the picture of that title. You see her now again, as the singer on an amateur program, "discovered" by Donald Woods, and brought to Hollywood and fame. Featured with her are Rosalind Marquis who had a leading role in "Goldiggers" and "Marked Woman" and Fred Lawrence. The songs include "I Am The Singer—You Are The Song," "Born To Love" and "I Was Wrong."

Remember, Tuesday night you can play the exciting game of Hollywood.

Spain's Revolution Background for Film

The drama of war-torn Spain has been made the background for a powerful motion picture plot by Paramount Pictures in "The Last Train From Madrid," the star-studded drama which heads the twin hit program at the Rio Theatre on Wednesday and Thursday.

With a capable cast of players headed by Dorothy Lamour, Lew Ayres, Gilbert Roland, Karen Morley, Lionel Atwill and many other skilled players, "The Last Train From Madrid" is the story of ten persons, most of them unknown to each other whose lives are suddenly thrown together and their destinies worked out during twelve feverish hours in Madrid while the city is under heavy bombardment.

"The Last Train From Madrid" is "strictly neutral" in the issues involved in the present Spanish conflict. It simply deals with the ten lives caught in the maelstrom, and follows them during the twelve hours in which the story takes place.

About as many laugh-winning players as Warner Bros. had on their own lot could rally from outside sources were poured into "Marry The Girl," the wild and hilarious farce-comedy which will be the other feature attraction on Wednesday and Thursday.

Frank McHugh, for example, who recently wowed audiences with his "Owini" in "Three Men On A Horse," Carol Hughes, who was "discovered" by Donald Woods, and brought to Hollywood and fame. Featured with her are Rosalind Marquis who had a leading role in "Goldiggers" and "Marked Woman" and Fred Lawrence. The songs include "I Am The Singer—You Are The Song," "Born To Love" and "I Was Wrong."

THE NAZIS IN AMERICA

The German-American Bund consisting of about 250,000 paying members is drawing attacks from many quarters in this country as "an alien group supporting principles destructive of America."

Since when did we become so particular about the importation of European poisons?

Have steps been taken to choke off the free flow of orders from the land of the Volga to the poor slant-brows in this country who pay fealty to the bloody hammer and sickle?

Do we not have camps in which young men are trained to shake their fists at Old Glory and to learn the true significance of Moscow teachings?

Why become so agitated at the Nazis, fruit that springs from the soil, and pay so little attention to the seed that is planted?

The Bund declares it has seventy-eight important locals in this country, and includes Sheboygan and Kenosha. Taking its avowed purposes at their par value, it supports America and its constitution, fights Marxian doctrines in every form, and then, in the language of its leader:

"We bring our German-American boys and girls together and take care of them. We educate them in history—American history. We try to make them all learn the German language, because they ought to know and speak the tongue of the fatherland. We bring them to the great outdoors in our camps and are thus doing a job of Americanism. We try to correct false reports about Germany. We do not like to see different groups create hatreds of other countries which will affect diplomatic relationships."

Is this movement something to be crushed or is it the natural result of sloppiness permitted or stimulated by the government?

There is one thing about it that cannot be tolerated in America and that is the drilling and training of a private militia.

We must not permit private armies of any sort, great or small, favorable to Rome, Berlin or Moscow, directed in the interests of Jews or Gentiles, taking orders from Lewis or Girdler, Ku Klux Klan or Bund.

That is a flat declaration that must admit of no exceptions. It is as important as the independence of the judiciary.

America must keep its troops under the direction of its elected leaders.

But if you dismiss these Nazi storm troops you have probably dismissed with them all legal complaints against the Bund however much its political implications may be criticized.

If it be considered the Bund has developed from the Germans' natural distaste for and horror of the disorders of communism consideration must also be given to the importation into this country of the Jewish Boycott, an outgrowth of the Reich's war on Jewry. For the Bund has its economic as well as its convivial purposes. It presents the German Boycott to meet the Jewish Boycott.

For this purpose it supports the German-American Business League which obtains a percentage tribute from merchants and consumers alike for listing in the directory it publishes. Bund members are sworn to buy only from listed dealers and from this practice it is estimated the Bund reaps a splendid income, some say into the millions, although accurate figures are not available.

So, if you seek to diagnose the causes of the Bund's existence and try to foresee its course, you discover that its obnoxious elements may be attributed to two equally obnoxious causes improperly brought to America, communism and the Jewish Boycott.

And there you have again an example of poison creating poison, wrong begetting wrong, as angry or intemperate elements insist upon dragging their European hatreds and quarrels to this land which will become just as bad in time if it permits their spread.

No people we know of have endured more wrongs than the Jews. Yet their boycott against Hitler, insofar as its transfer to America is concerned, is indefensible. Here is the way it worked out to quote a dependable authority:

"Well-to-do Jewish families in the Bronx promptly fired all their German help—maids, cooks, nurses, gardeners. They fired them out of their business offices, too. A New York banker discharged all of his German cooks. The Jews did not stop to inquire whether these Germans were Nazis. A good many of them were kindly, gentle souls. They were driven to the Nazis for protection."

So, along our Eastern border where the alien lands and usually takes root the Nazi quarrel is assuming sizable proportions. The Jews boycott everything German. The Bund boycotts everything Jewish. A boycott is caused by a somewhat blind hatred and creates more intense hatred with a vision.

Nazis and Reds bring their dissensions, which may be more largely racial than class or economic, and the Reds train against Nazism and the Nazis train against Communism.

This is fine gratitude to America for the bounteous gifts it has shared upon all comers!

Before the war German-American organizations existed in almost every hamlet. Their purposes were friendly and their frolics were happy entertainments.

The effort to preserve the language, songs or traditions of the old country is natural and not to be denied or imposed upon, although our history has shown that it cannot be successful after the pioneering immigrants have passed on into the shadows.

Disassociate the Bund from any military efforts and break it away from the boycott business and it would present nothing out of the ordinary or inviting criticism.

And it must be remembered that its tainted parts were not made by it alone.

A SAFE METHOD OF BUYING INFLUENCE?

It is to be hoped that the men engaged now and then in bribing—or should we say "influencing"?—councilmen, legislators, sheriffs, and district attorneys, and especially in relation to vice, slot-machines, roulette and the like, take particular notice of how the Big Fellows buy influence from Sultan Jim Farley, without even arousing the interest of the President.

There are hundreds of examples but that of the Chrysler corporation will suffice. This great manufacturing institution, expressly forbidden by a specific act of congress from contributing money to a political party and with about as much use for the New Deal as it has for a Model T. Ford, paid $12,500 over to the Democratic committee for the express purpose of buying influence with the government albeit the announced consideration was 50 copies of the Democratic campaign book considered so valuable that delivery was not even accepted. Those who did take the books tossed them out to the junk man.

Here we have Mr. Farley's conception of the law. This is his method of construction. Laws were not made for Mr. Farley but only for those nondescripts sometimes called "the peepul."

The difference between Mr. Farley and the ordinary hoodlum who gets himself in jail is one of finesse. The hoodlum goes to a district attorney or sheriff and says: "I'll give you fifty dollars per month for each slot machine you let me run."

When the deal is concluded bribery is effected. And that is against the law.

If Mr. Farley were running the slot machines he could say: I love old papers so well that if you will keep your Post-Crescents I will pay you fifty dollars a month for the old copies.

That is not crime. Just good business.

But a warning here should be issued to any considering the trade of bribery. Do not under any circumstances permit the plan to come before an unpacked court. Judges are so heartless when they consider slippery pretexts of the Farley order that the former prize fight promoter might find himself shaking hands with Mr. Fall.

And recall, too, that once when we had a President by the name of Coolidge he pushed an attorney-general by the name of Daugherty out of office even before as much villainy upon the part of that gentleman had been revealed as now stands admitted against the Field Marshall of the Roosevelt forces.

If the Administration at Washington continues to accept this tainted money to buy oil for its Democratic machine let us invite Mr. Fall back, not only to apologize for his conviction of accepting a bribe, but that he may roll back in a deep-seated chair and start the chorus of "Hail, Hail, The Gang's All Here!"

BIRTHDAYS

Henry Ford was 74 yesterday and Mussolini 54. To both these country boys who made good in the city—and both retain the rustic flavor—a birthday is just another day. Ford celebrated by talking to reporters about backward politics and stupid business and Mussolini by reviewing a squadron of the Adriatic Fleet. Thus they pointed the contrast between the "man of action" as he animates the American saga and the "man of action" as personified in the current Roman legend. Not the least poignant note in the contrast is a comparative estimate of the real power of the pioneer in the automobile business and the Fascist dictator. It is Ford's contention that revolutions are made in the laboratory and politicians only think they count, and who can deny that his contraption has wrought a greater change in the habits of Americans than the faces and black shirts in the lives of Italians? And as a world influence—well, any one who imagines that achievements like remodeling a nation or conquering Ethiopia constitute a first title to fame should travel the byways of the world. From Ultima Thule to the last atoll of the South Seas, Mussolini is only another bird-call, but every blank eye brightens at the name of Ford.—New York Times.

YOU TELL 'EM

Wonder why they is some fellers can't let old Sodbuster alone. Sometimes I got eloquent flashes of silence which is why for so long you don't hear from me.

Just when I think I'm setting back in tranquility and repose some one takes a dig at me. And I feel just like I do on Sunday morning when my wife wakes me up at 6 o'clock and tells me I don't have to work today.

Then I got a penchant to dig up my vitriolic pen and make a plebeian effort to answer those fellers with vicious vituperation.

Someday I'm going to answer those fellows.

I'll talk back to them in the two languages which I know best which is English and Profane.

—Ezekiel Sodbuster

IT'S GOT ME

Click, click, click. This typewriter makes me sick. Ring, ring, ring. Well, answer the darn thing. Work, work, work. I really am tempted to shirk. Type, type, type. Pardon me, while I gripe.

The erection of 20-mile-an-hour speed limit signs throughout the city leaves little excuse for the fast driver. Word comes that the Appleton police department is determined to make driving safe and sane in the city and I would be inclined to back any concerted drive to the hilt.

Included on my hate list: women drivers . . . Roosevelt's policy of cracking a whip over his congressional servants but letting labor run rampant . . . a local apartment building without hot water for night onto many months . . . women strenuously objecting to sitting for a picture but breaking their neck to put on make-up and fluff their hair.

Keep on the road this weekend and off the front page Monday!

A Verse for Today

By Anne Campbell

A GLIMPSE OF YOU

I do not want an ocean trip;
I will not sail the lake's clear blue;
I do not crave a flying ship;
I only ask a glimpse of you.

A crowd is just a gallery
Of phantom faces; and a road
Means nothing in the world to me
Unless it runs past your abode.

I do not care if summer brings
Me gorgeous blossoms wet with dew,
Deaf to the plaintive bird that sings,
I only want a glimpse of you.

You are my summer, for you trail
Its golden glory in your wake;
A glimpse of you! The harsh winds quail,
And deserts blossom for your sake!

Personal Health Talks

BY WILLIAM BRADY M. D.
Noted Physician and Author

THE BUILDER-UPPER AND TEARER-DOWNER

Long time no say much about physiological relation between insufficient daily vitamin and mineral intake and abnormal or excessive craving or capacity for refined carbohydrates. Wiseacre laity and rank and file of American Medical Yes-sociation no listen. If Yes-sociation's pancratic "spokesman" explode too many smart-crackers on idea in newspaper shop.

Loss of appetite, that is for proper food, is one characteristic feature or symptom of multiple neuritis, whether it be oriental polynuritis (beriberi) or damp-phool Yankee alcoholic neuritis. Both maladies are due to prolonged extreme shortage of vitamin B. This fact is slowly permeating the medical mind—there are still many physicians here in America who scarcely comprehend that so-called alcoholic neuritis is a nutritional deficiency and calls for all the vitamin B the victim can take in any form or manner. Twenty per cent of all cases of polynuritis, according to Vorhaus (Dig. Dis. and Nutr. 3, 915, '37), have intensification or aggravation of neuritis pain a few days after vitamin B treatment begins lasting for nearly a week, before the steady improvement becomes evident. In all neuritis cases it is well to remember this.

If increased intake of vitamins and minerals, or just vitamins, restores lost appetite or improves a poor appetite, as it does in beriberi, alcoholic neuritis and many vague cases of "below-par" condition, how can the same treatment curb excessive or abnormal appetite or craving for food? That is the question propounded by a good many critics who speak first and think afterward—if at all. These half-informer skeptics remind us of the birds who argue: "If drafts don't cause pneumonia how do you account for the many narrow escapes my Aunt Ophelia had from catching her death that way?"

A similar sophomoric question was propounded by the brass surgeons when the mass administration of iodine was introduced in the prevention of goitre. These bumptious publicity hounds made considerable noise for a while in their campaign to scare people off from the iodine ration recommended by the real medical and health authorities. It might cause overactivity of the thyroid gland, hyperthyroidism, exophthalmic goitre or "toxic" goitre as the scheming quacks like to call it—they know how that term "toxic" impresses the wise-acre public. In actual practice, however, the mass iodine treatment proved as effective against exophthalmic goitre as against simple goitre—the number of goitre operations in the area diminished noticeably, according to hospital statistics. Iodine, therefore, may correct not only underactivity but also overactivity of the thyroid gland.

Likewise vitamins, particularly vitamin B (probably G and D enhance its effect), may correct an abnormal craving for refined carbohydrates as well as a poor appetite. In actual practice thousands of persons have found that they are satisfied with considerably less carbohydrate when they get adequate daily rations of these vitamins. We know that vitamin B promotes better metabolism and utilization of carbohydrate, so that the individual burns it instead of storing an excess in his blood and tissues.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Nervous

Had a nervous breakdown 4 years ago. I am 38. Been told my thyroid is over-active. Is this shortage of one mineral or all the minerals? (Mrs. H. C. H.)

Answer—"Nervous breakdown" may mean anything to you, but it means nothing to me, Madam. If Ben Told was your physician, perhaps he has some idea what ails you and what you should do about it.

Sleep As You Like

Have always slept without a pillow, but now everything seems to whirl around even with the pillow under my head and when I lie on left side. Is this what any woman should expect at a certain time in life? (A. R.)

Answer—Nonsense. Your pillow, your age and the position in which you sleep have nothing to do with it. Discard those silly notions and consult a physician.

Lame Dogs

Please give us some advice about foot troubles. My dogs are so sore and lame. (F. M.)

Answer—Send ten cents and three-cent stamped envelope bearing your address, for booklet "Care of the Feet."

Your Birthday

BY MARY BLAKE
LEO

If August 1 is your birthday the best hours for you on this date are from 8:45 to 11:45 a. m. from 3:45 to 5:45 p. m. and from 7:45 to 10:45 p. m. The danger periods are from 7:45 to 9:45 a. m. from 5:45 to 7:45 p. m. and from 10:45 p. m. until midnight.

For those who will endeavor to make it so, this will be a very peaceful, enjoyable Sunday, so it will be largely a personal matter as to what sort of a day this will be for you. The powers of intuition will be extremely active and it might be well to be guided by them. Do not allow the fectors of justice on this day. Reason things out for yourself, after weighing carefully the opinion of any one who has one to offer for your consideration. Prevaling ideas of entertainment may call for a careful analysis before adapting them.

This ought to be a favorable day for the exchange of confidences, discussion of plans, and for the making of engagements. Married and engaged couples, and those whom Cupid has brought together, must cooperate in every way on this day if things are to work out harmoniously.

If a woman and August 1 is your birthday, you are probably economical, a good business woman, and very orderly. Through diligence you are likely to accomplish something well worth while. Be careful not to be prudishly conventional, for it might spoil your chances of becoming very popular. You must view things through the eyes of the youth of today rather than through those of aye, if you are to get a firm grasp as well as a comprehensive understanding of some events that are likely to happen. Set aside preconceived ideas instilled in your mind by gossip on this day and from evidence that may be presented to you draw your own conclusions. As a trained nurse, missionary, teacher, author, secretary, artist, musician, or professional entertainer, you may succeed beyond your expectations. It would seem logical for you to martyr, for every indication appears to be auspicious.

The child born on August 1, from its preparatory school days on throughout its life, frequently has a natural proclivity to tease and play harmless jokes. Socially this youngster will be popular and in business or professionally very successful.

If a man and August 1 is your natal day, a keen sense of humor will help you over many a difficult situation. Courage, honesty and perseverance, are your outstanding characteristics. The legal, medical, chemical, engineering, educational, theological and theatrical professions may be among the activities through which your best chances to become wealthy and famous may be found.

Seen And Heard In New York

BY GEORGE TUCKER

New York—For four cents in New York you may get on a boat and ride for an hour, a week, or a month. . . . I suppose one could stay aboard forever or until the boat was docked for repairs. . . . These are the ferries on the Hudson which relay motorists to and from the Jersey shore. Pedestrians only may come in for these uninterrupted rides, however. With each crossing the huge saucer-like ferries are emptied of vehicles. Passengers have the run of the crafts, which means the smoking aisles, or the vast upstairs, where the view is good and the cooling breezes whip in with refreshing zest.

Many people here in the cool of the evening like to get on these boats—any of them, and park themselves on the upper decks, foot on rail, and be wafted back and forth across the river, taking the air and enjoying the changing color of the sky. New York is viewed from afar, is prettiest at this time. The vague blues of the sky, generally in the Maxfield Parrish manner, envelop the city like soft velvet curtains, and the pinpoints of light in various hues wink from ten thousand windows.

Brooklyn bridge is also a favorite spot for this vista, and the city is glimpsed from these dark, gloomy arches has inspired at least one famous canvas.

A couple of summers ago an attempt was made to serve beer and ale on the boats, but it never came about. In the mornings, however, one may have coffee and doughnuts, which are served on the upper deck, an opportunity of which many commuters avail themselves. The coffee is almost always bad, but the service is pleasant and the pastry is good. Coffee costs a dime, although second helpings come without charge. The pastry is also 10 cents, but there are no re-fills.

As it requires about 15 minutes for each crossing, this gives the office workers hurrying to their chores just time for a bite of breakfast. . . . The other morning two stenographers from somewhere in New Jersey were making their daily pilgrimage to the city, and one of them remarked: "I live for this moment, Dora. I like to see

A Bystander In Washington

BY PRESTON GROVER

Washington—The state department was neither disturbed nor alarmed at the faltering of the Oriental dove of peace. It was downright jittery.

A Japanese-Chinese war is just about the last thing this country wants. In the first place, as one critic said, it is a bad time for a war to start.

A Japanese-Chinese war might spread quickly to Russia, then involve Germany on the other side of Eurasia. No one needs to guess what would happen after that.

Another thing, the American neutrality act would go into effect. Under it, the state department is like a man with his neck under the guillotine. It can't negotiate. It can't bid its time. It can't do anything except to call crawling into a hole.

And by the very act of withdrawing it would contribute to the success of one side.

In Japan's Favor

In the instance of a Japanese-Chinese war, the neutrality act would serve the Japanese mightily. For they could come to America and pick up certain much needed supplies under the "cash-and-carry" section of the bill, while the Chinese, without a first class fighting ship on the whole waterfront, couldn't come for a pennyweight.

Looking at it from a cold commercial standpoint, a war in the East would interfere with the buying power of one of America's best customers—Japan. The neutrality act would prohibit that nation buying arms and munitions. So that business would be out. But at present Japan buys more than $100,000,000 of raw cotton from this country annually. Under the neutrality act the president is directed to impose an embargo on the commodities besides munitions, if it do so would promote the cause of peace. So the secretary of war and the president would be under pressure from "strict neutrality" adherents to cut off Japan's supply of cotton and steel. And there would be tremendous pressure against such action from cotton growing states and the steel industry, including labor.

Double Caution

Having to face a real war in the Pacific while strapped in that sort of strait-jacket was not a sunny prospect for the state department.

Moreover, Secretary Hull sincerely wants the world to be at peace. With him it is not mere policy. It is religion.

The state department insists it was quite by accident that representatives of China and Japan showed up at the state department, an hour apart, to run smack into the solemn caution that it would be "a great blow to the cause of peace and world progress" for them to go to war.

The caution was obviously intended more for Japan than China. No one, except possibly Japan, has accused China of starting all this Oriental monkey-business.

people hurrying—and don't they have wonderful coffee?"

Dora said she liked the coffee too but was no longer thrilled by the ferry ride and the hurrying throngs, because she had spent 15 years making the same jaunt twice daily, Sundays excepted. Blaise.

As if he already hasn't enough to do, what with pursuing his studies in the occult, directing his orchestra, pioneering in Japanese music, and writing, Vincent Lopez is going to give a series of lectures at Columbia University next fall. He will also conduct two classes in music at the university. Twenty years ago Vincent would have needed more than the stars to give him an inkling of his future. At that time he was in a monastery studying to become a priest.

Clintonville, New London Teams in Crucial Game

New London—Everything points to one of those "classical" baseball games when the Clintonville Trunkers invade the New London diamond against the Knapstein Brews here Sunday night. Twice the New London aggregation has defeated Clintonville when a decision either way was important to both and again they meet, each tied for first place in the second round flight. Neopit, Shawano and Waupaca also are in first place but a couple are due to be eliminated.

Manager Polaski of the Brews has announced an all-star lineup for the game tomorrow night while the Trucker offensive is still in question. Arnie Kelley, who pitched a tight game against Green Bay Thursday night, will take the position in centerfield. Ivan Becker will draw the hurling assignment with Pete Westphal on the bench in reserve.

Duffy Edminster will guard right field and Phil Palmer the left section. With Orin Krohn behind the plate as usual, Hank McCrone will hold down first base, Leon "Iggy" Polaski on second, Domning at short and Clifford "Tip" Krohn at third.

While the Clintonville moundman is unknown it probably will be either Jimmy Hoffmann or Walter Raasch as Tomlin worked against Kaukauna Thursday night in a non-league game.

KILLOREN'S

High Tourney Score Made On Doubled 4-Spade Bid

BY ELY CULBERTSON
In the recent annual mixed pair championships held in Los Angeles as a preliminary event leading up to the second annual all-western bridge week the following hand was played by the winning team in four spades doubled and made for the highest score on the board in the tournament.
South, dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

♦ K Q 7 6 5
♣ A 8 4
EAST
♠ Q J 9 8 7
♥ 10 5
♦ A K J 9 8 7 6
♣ J 10 3
SOUTH
♠ K 6
♥ Q 4 2
♦ A 9 4
♣ K Q 10 6

At most tables the hand was played at three no trump by the North-South pair, a contract they invariably made. Against the mixed pair champions, Barbara Deatherage and Jake Erlenbach, East opened the bidding with three hearts. South doubled and, after West had passed, North bid three spades. South raised to four and West doubled. The hand proved to be a pretty one. Four spades were there against any line of defense, but the actual play was far from easy.

East opened the heart king and shifted to the diamond jack (a heart continuation would have made no difference). North won in his own hand with the diamond king and led only one high trump, since he could tell from the cards in sight that the penalty double must have been based on extreme length in trumps. Four rounds of clubs then followed. Declarer then led the diamond ace and ruffed a heart with the four of trumps. (West was now down to the Q-J-8-8 of trumps.) The diamond queen followed. West had to ruff and return the queen of spades. Dummy won and now all North had to do to insure his own ten of spades for a trick was to lead the heart queen. Although the spade ten was blank, West could not prevent its making. If West ruffed with the jack North would merely discard and later make the spade ten, whereas West's actual ruff with the nine spot was overruled.

Thus declarer made four club tricks, two diamonds, the ace and king of spades in dummy, and the 10-4 of spades in his own hand, for a total of ten tricks.

TODAY'S QUESTION
Question: When an insufficient bid is made and an opponent overcalls, does not the insufficient bid stand as a correct bid? For instance:

North East South West
1 heart Pass 4 hearts 4 diamonds Pass

Since north has passed, West is not required to make his bid five diamonds, or some other bid to overcall four hearts, is he?

Answer: Certainly not. Law 22 (2) states that if an improper call is overcalled in rotation the auction proceeds as though the improper call had been a proper call made in rotation.

GOOD TASTE TODAY

BY EMILY POST

PROBLEMS IN HOUSE FURNISHING

Dear Mrs. Post: For five years we've lived with makeshift living room furniture—hand-downs from our families—because we wanted to wait until we could afford to buy lasting furniture. Furnishing our first living room is now under consideration, and both my husband and I are very much attracted by the restrained version of modern furniture. This is where I should like so much to have your opinion. In the so-called "modern art" as expressed in furniture (freakishness excluded), is there anything of good or lasting value? Or is it destined in five or ten years to be classed in bad taste—perhaps as a product of the depression decade?

Answer: Alas, the only way to know whether a thing has lasting value is after it has lasted! Or best yet, in my opinion, after it has come into fashion and gone out and then comes back permanently. However, if you have any knowledge of line and proportion, and if you see this knowledge in choosing what you buy, and if you above everything choose things that serve their purpose and that give complete comfort, I don't think you can go far wrong. You certainly could not consider a chair comfortable that has a back four inches high, nor one of mammoth outline, nor a sofa which is expected to be delightful to sit on but which has no ends, or a lamp so low that it lights nothing above your knees.

Dear Mrs. Post: We are living in a house, which has grown too small for our needs, but there doesn't seem to be very much we can do at the present time in the way of enlarging it. However, I believe we might improve its usefulness if we eliminate the dining room and turn that room into a downstairs bedroom. My family is horrified at the idea of no dining room and equally put out at the thought of a bedroom downstairs. Can you give me any suggestions at all, or am I asking the impossible?

Answer: If the dining room is not in any sense a passageway and your living room is large enough to have a table at one end, I see no reason in the world why you should not change your dining room into a bedroom. After all, the arrangement of your house should be first of all that which is comfortable to you. And a dining room is as a matter of fact the one extravagant use of space where space is lacking, because it can be eliminated. (Copyright 1937)

Here's How to Handle Child Who Follows Crowd

BY ANGELO PATRI

"Is there anything one can do to teach intelligent boys and girls that they do not have to follow the crowd to get where they want to be? I am about at my wits end. 'Everybody does it. Everybody wears one. Everybody is going.' seem to be the only thoughts in my children's heads when a decision has to be made. I would like my children to learn that they could be different on occasions without being declassified."

That notion is old as man-kind. We cannot live alone in comfort. We cannot act alone and feel pleased about it. We must have the companionship of others, we have to have their approval and their praise and if possible, their envy, to support our feeble spirits. Only the bravest of the leaders dare stand alone and if they cannot carry the crowd along with them, they fail.

But it is possible to cultivate a degree of individuality in most healthy children. It is almost too much to expect that the early adolescent stage of development will allow such expression of personal power. That usually comes, if it comes at all, in post adolescence and it comes to full maturity when the adult reaches his full spiritual stature. One must teach children to work toward that end and be grateful if they seem inclined to look in that direction.

One thing we can do, and which we often neglect. We can give children a chance to choose their way, their own colors, their own gifts, their own choice of recreation, choose among such experiences as offer a degree of self-expression without danger to mind or body. Teachers and parents are busy people and they take shortcuts whenever possible by telling children exactly what they are to do and how they are to do it and just when. The child trained in that way will not be the one to lead the group. He will be the one who watches to see what is being done and follows the pattern. You cannot blame it on him. His training set him that way.

Rearing a child to start his own line of action, to choose his own course, is a nerve-racking, risky business that requires a strong mind, a clear brain, a stout heart. It demands patience, for the child will fumble and make unexpected and embarrassing mistakes. It will take courage for one cannot foresee what will happen to him in his adventures, and the harsh criticism of those who look on from the safety of the sidelines, within the conventional scheme of education will be hard to bear. It will take wisdom and hope and faith beyond daily store for the spirit of Youth is eager to soar and reckless in his ignorance of danger. But the doing is worth while for only the soul that is reared in liberty will know what liberty means. Only the mind that has been reared in freedom can know the meaning of that word. Only the freed spirit will dare mightily to keep that spirit free.

There was once a Scottish chieftain whose clan had been worsted somewhat by another. At the banquet given by the victor the defeated one was ordered to sit below the best. He tossed his plume and strode to the appointed place saying, "Where McGregor sits is the head of the table and the place of homage to you." I imagine that McGregor was ill to rear, but I know he was ever the head of the table.

Mr. Patri will give personal attention to inquiries from parents and school teachers on the care and development of children. Write him in care of this paper, enclosing a three-cent stamped, addressed envelope for reply.

Oil Nails To Prevent Breaking

BY ELSIE PIERCE

Brittle Nails

Betty: It isn't as hard as you think to account for the fact that your nails break during the summer more than in the winter. For one thing the sand, sun, and more frequent washings and dippings in ocean or lake when swimming all tend to dry the oil at the nail bed. Then, too, one is less likely to use oil and hand lotions in the summer. Oil manicures may not seem exactly inviting, but they are very welcome. Or you can treat your nails to olive oil soaking each night or wrap small pads of cotton dipped in olive oil around the nails. Each time you wash your hands push back the cuticle and massage it to stimulate circulation at the nail bed. Or purchase one of the ready-prepared brittle nail creams and use daily. If you wish full information on care of nails and the home manicure, won't you send a self-addressed, stamped (3-cent) envelope for my bulletins on "Hand Care"?

M. G.: The ingredient usually present in anti-perspirants is aluminum chloride. A fifteen or twenty percent solution in distilled water is average. Anything above that is quite strong and may be irritating to the skin. There are good preparations on the market and they are not very expensive so that it hardly pays to experiment making your own at home. However, you can if you wish. Full information on this subject is contained in a bulletin on "Perspiration" and if you wish it please write for it, enclosing self-addressed, stamped (3-cent) envelope.

On Weight Charts

Rena: Five-five and twenty-five and you are complaining about being overweight at 130 pounds? You are quite normal and I would not advise you to reduce. You say your face appears quite round. If the bone structure accounts for the roundness I am afraid there isn't much to do about it. As a matter of fact, instead of reducing try a few optical illusions by means of make-up and a change of coiffure. Yes, I do have a weight chart available for a self-addressed, stamped (3-cent) envelope. And when studying such charts remember that a few pounds either way should not be taken seriously.

Blonde: You say you have very light hair which is very dry, especially in the summer. Your problem is treating it without darkening it. True, oil treatments may tend to darken the hair somewhat. But I would advise you to continue with the oil treatments, by all means or have special scalp treatments including cream or pomade specially prepared for light hair. Also, have a lemon rinse used after the shampoo to lighten the hair.

Questions of general interest will be answered in this column. Letters of a very personal nature should be accompanied by a self-addressed, stamped (3-cent) envelope for personal reply. Also column answers cannot always appear at a requested date for letters are answered in turn. Address Miss Pierce in care of the Appleton Post-Crescent.

Trial Marriage Fine in Theory, Fails in Practice

BY DOROTHY DIX

Dear Miss Dix—I married a friendly sweet girl, but in two years she changed into a bitter, hateful nagger, and this I have had to endure for forty years. Now I believe that our marriage laws are most unjust and that instead of marriage being a life contract it should only be for one year, renewable or not, at the pleasure of the parties concerned. Hence I suggest that a law be passed making a marriage license good only for twelve months, involving no alimony or any responsibility for either the husband or wife if they decide to part. Both the father and mother should be equally responsible for any, and all, children born while the license was in effect and should pay for their support according to their income until the said children became 18 years old. There should be no third marriage unless one of the previous husbands or wives should have died. Licenses should cost from $2 to $5 for one year. I believe this plan would settle the divorce evil and make for general happiness.

FAIR PLAY.

Answer: Trial marriages have been suggested before, but Hollywood is the only place that has tried them out. And, judging from the number of divorces there, they don't seem to have been much of a success.

Short-term marriage is an intriguing theory that holds out the prospect of being able to eat your wedding cake and have it, too, but somehow it didn't seem to click when put into operation. Yet the idea was plausible enough. It made a bad marriage tolerable because there was a time limit set on it and one knew one had only to endure a bad husband or wife for so many years or months or days instead of for life. On the other hand, it enhanced the happiness of a successful marriage because those who were lucky enough to have got husbands and wives that suited them would be on their tiptoes to keep them and make every effort to please them.

But the trial marriage petered out because, perhaps, when people marry they optimistically expect their love to last and never dream that they will ever lose their taste for each other, or get on each other's nerves.

As I recall it the original trial marriage was for five years as the minimum time for the experiment to run, and if that failed there is little chance for your plan of taking out a yearly marriage license as one does on automobile license. That is swapping partners too rapidly, for that wouldn't give the husband and wife a chance to get acquainted, to say nothing of adjusting themselves to each other and finding out whether or not they really could make a go of marriage.

If a marriage license was only good for one year, there would be very many renewals because after the honeymoon has set and a couple settle down to the real business of marriage there nearly always comes a slump which makes both the husband and wife wonder what made them do it. The bride learns there is more cooking and cleaning and scrubbing in it than loveydoveying and that a husband doesn't look much like a Prince Charming when you get him home. The husband mourns his lost freedom and is amazed to find what it costs to support a home.

Both of them would be likely to let the option lapse if that was all there was to it. But inasmuch as they can't do this and they realize they are tied tight and fast, most of them have the good sense to make the best of their bargains, and they fight through their little differences and settle down into making a success of their marriages.

And, of course, in every marriage the children are the chief ones to consider. It has been settled beyond any argument that their good de-

Chapter Five
Come to the Flying Six
H Kay lived through the next few hours she never quite knew. After the arrival of the truck, everything seemed to happen all at once. Babs came home, accompanied by Josh Hastings, owner of the Flying Six, and his daughter Ruth. Babs' chum and inseparable companion.

As she was soothing Babs, whose 10-year-old courage was temporarily eclipsed by the enormity of this disaster, Kay suddenly looked up to find Josh Hastings' eyes fixed on her with a peculiar enigmatic stare. He quickly averted his gaze.

When Babs was finally calmed down, and had gone off with Ruth to inspect the charred ruins from pends upon their being reared in a stable home with permanent parents. So your plan for having a new set of fathers and mothers every year certainly won't work. Perhaps, after all, we had best stick to the old until-death-do-us-part plan. If that needs any alteration, it is a little tightening up, not loosening.

Dear Miss Dix—We fell madly in love when we first met. He told me he was married, but that he would ask his wife for his freedom, which he did. His wife graciously consented to divorce him because she said that was the only decent thing to do. I expected him to leave her immediately and so did she, but he has not done it. I am beginning to wonder if this man is really worth while and if there is a chance of his getting tired of me some day and leaving me for another woman. It could happen again, you know. Besides, his wife is a lovely woman in every respect and I wonder how he could prefer me to her. I love him more than life itself, or else I wouldn't be letting myself in for such a mess. But is he worth it?

Answer:

He certainly doesn't look it. A man who leaves a fine wife for no cause at all except that he is fickle, is not likely to be faithful to any woman. The girl who marries him takes a long shot at happiness.

Old Gardener Says:

Seeds of the English daisy should be sown in late July to produce blooms for next spring. The seeds can be sown either in an open seed bed or in a cold-frame. A cold frame is more satisfactory in most localities for the frame not only protects the seedlings from drying winds during August, but provides winter protection as well. In early spring the plants can be set in their permanent locations. In a protected location, or where the winters are not severe, the plants will go through the winter in the beds if given a light mulch. If wintered in the cold-frame, they should be given a light mulch. If wintered in the cold-frame, they should be given an abundance of air on all but the coldest days. This lovely dwarf daisy gives a wealth of bloom in May and June.

he used the same note of patronizing tolerance.

"Just as you say. But I don't see exactly how you're going to manage." He glanced significantly at the smouldering ruins. "At least let Babs come back with us for a few weeks. That would suit Ruth and me down to the ground."

Babs Does Some Coaxing

Kay hesitated. She hated accepting favors from him, but it would certainly be a lot easier to have Babs away just now. Babs' friendship with Ruth put it on a slightly different basis, and yet—

"That's awfully good of you," she temporized, "but—"

"What's good of him, Sis?" Kay started, as Babs' voice broke in on her, and the next minute, a small whirlwind was giving her an impulsive hug. "Is he asking us to play at the Flying Six? Please say 'yes,' Sis! Please!"

Ruth's voice joined in the pleading, and Kay looked doubtfully from one eager face to the other, as she tried to decide.

"Please, Sis!" Babs repeated, pushing back her blonde curls and winking at Ruth to egg her on to join in the coaxing. "Where could we stay, anyway?"

"I'm going to stay in one of the cabins," Kay answered, with sudden decision. "But if Mr. Hastings and Ruth would really like to have you, you can go back with them for a little visit."

"Whoopee!" Babs and Ruth both broke into a triumphant shout, then Babs' eyes suddenly clouded. But Sis, wouldn't you rather have me with you? I wish you'd come, too!"

"Perhaps she will yet," Josh Hastings' tone seemed to imply something.

"I'm afraid I'll be too busy," Kay answered. "I'm going to start rebuilding at once."

The smug skeptical smile Kay

Merchants Hope For Win Sunday Over Oshkosh Cabs

Neenah Squad Has Already Lost Two Games to Opponents

First place in the Northern Valley league is at stake with Neenah only a half game ahead of the Cabs who have had some tough luck in league games the last few weeks, losing to Menasha and Appleton.

The winner of Sunday's tilt will probably be the team to be selected to represent the Valley league in the state tournament at Milwaukee this fall. Both clubs have been pointing for Sunday's game and Oshkosh is considered to have the best chance to win because of its two other wins over Neenah.

Bob Jerome, who has been carrying the torch for Neenah along with Orr Schultz, will get the starting assignment on the mound with Jim Christofferson behind the rubber. Alwin, who has done most of the hurling for the Cabs this season, will start for Oshkosh with either Musarauer or Roth catching.

Ladies' days at the various country clubs in this vicinity provide a pleasant reason for staying home these summer days. Each week after a morning of golf, luncheon is served at the club house, and the occasion is often used to entertain out-of-town guests. After the luncheon, there is a whole afternoon to devote to that favorite feminine diversion, bridge. The ladies' day scenes above were taken at Ridgeway Golf club, Neenah, and Riverview Country club, Appleton, this week.

At the lower left are Miss Priscilla Gilbert, Neenah, and the group she entertained at luncheon Tuesday at Riverview Country club in honor of Miss Jean Clifford, Greenwich, Conn., a guest at the Ernst Mahler home. Left to right, the girls are Miss Gilbert, Miss Clifford, Miss Jeanne Sage, Miss Peggy Kimberly, Miss Katherine Gilbert and Miss Alice Perry Bergstrom.

All of the golf scenes were taken at Ridgeway Golf club's ladies' day on Wednesday. Wide Appeal of Barrie's Books Is Largely Due to His Subtle Humor

By Jean Wiley Thickens

"A CITY OF BELLS" by Elizabeth Goudge.

The wide appeal of James M. Barrie's books is due chiefly to two factors: his gentle but subtle humor, and his genuine love for, and understanding of, children. These same literary characteristics tincture the writings of Elizabeth Goudge, whose latest book "A City of Bells," appeared recently. It is a story of a quiet, well-ordered life in a small cathedral town in England. Against a tapestry of mediaeval ecclesiastical architecture the several characters in this truly delightful book weave the individual patterns of their lives. The plot too unfolds in Barrie's typically Puckish style. There is the same flavor of homely humor and pathos, and same human foibles and follies; and inevitably the same tender love story.

The plot centers around Jocelyn Irvin, a charming young man who has recently returned from the Boer war in South Africa, with a permanently maimed leg and minus his illusions, ament the glories of battle. Back in London he finds himself restless and unhappy, and his family find him a problem. At his mother's suggestion Jocelyn decides to journey to Torminster and pay a long visit to his grandparents whom he adores. His grandfather, at eighty-one, is the youngest canon of the cathedral. He is a true Christian with a Christian's tolerance for the shortcomings of his fellowmen. He understands and sympathizes with Jocelyn's restlessness. The canon's wife, one year his senior, has spent her life vainly trying to prevent him from giving away to less fortunate, most of his worldly goods, which frequently includes the overcoat off his back. This same tender heart has made him adopt his youngest grand-son, orphaned, aged ten and as full of energy as a two-year old colt. Grandmother Fordyce is still in the throes of adjusting herself to this job to her quiet life when grandfather returns one day from an inland trip through a nearby orphanage with an eight year old girl in tow. Her wistful eyes and tender smile had decided him to adopt her on the spot. These two old people are struggling manfully to cope with this problem when Jocelyn arrives. He soon becomes so interested in the children, especially the eight year old Henrietta, that he decides to settle down in Torminster and open a book shop in a delightful old house which stands vacant near the cathedral close and which has attracted his admiration from the first moment he discovered it. Around his shop the life of the town soon revolves. From the haughty dean of the cathedral, to Miss Mary, aged eighty-six, who keeps the sweet-shop in the village, they all drop in to buy or borrow books from Jocelyn, exchange items of gossip and confide their problems.

Felicity Summers, a beautiful and popular London actress, is equally intrigued by the little house with the green door. While taking a prolonged rest as the guest of her wealthy and eccentric god-mother who lives near the cathedral close, the word pictures of the ancient cathedral town, which Jocelyn finds upon his arrival, are typical of the author's technique: He arrived in the spring. The dreaming city, the west front of the cathedral with its rows of kings, and queens and saints, the wooded Tor, back of the village, the gardens full of flowers, the singing birds and chiming bells, the old house with its carved angels, the humming High Street, and the ancient Holy Well; these things did not seem to belong to a modern world. With her first book "Magic Island," Elizabeth Goudge won a recognized place for herself in the world of American letters; in "A City of Bells" she has demonstrated her ability to maintain that position.

MARRIAGE LICENSES

Applications for marriage licenses have been made at the office of John E. Hantschel, county clerk, by the following couples: Gordon Hartwig, route 1, Seymour, and Viola Drephal, route 1, Black Creek; Philip B. Oitman, Appleton, and Margaret Shannon, route 3, Appleton; Frank J. Wisnet and Margaret Reider, Appleton; Sylvester R. Schierl, Menasha, and Ione Hoffmann, Appleton; Clair R. Poole, Hortonville, and Ila M. Prentice, Dale.

Dim Lights for Safety

The descriptions are exquisite, Felicity and Jocelyn become acquainted and soon fall deeply in love. However there are hurdles, plenty of them, to be topped before their mutual love may even be acknowledged.

An obscure young Italian writer named Ferranti who once occupied the house with the green door and whom Henrietta used to call on often (because he told such lovely fairy stories) supplies the mystery element, to the plot. The lives of all the main characters revolve around the secret of his sudden disappearance, after he has left behind him an uncompleted a very beautiful narrative poem. This poem Jocelyn finds in an old cupboard of one house with the green door, and proceeds to complete it. Felicity Summers succeeds in having it produced on the London stage. There are many of these intriguing subplots in Miss Goudge's book as a Shakespearean drama, and the surprise element is well sustained until the final chapter.

Broadwater, Neb.—That bugaboo of newspaper publishers—lack of advertising—may have terror for Editor J. P. Kelley of the Broadwater News, but in this week's edition he did something about it. In a large blank space in which the ads might have been, Editor Kelley inserted three well spaced words: "Our—idle—acre."

In another gaping white hole, he chided non-advertisers, thusly: "A newspaper which hasn't a representative volume of local advertising is a dead newspaper and indicates a dead town. Either the non-advertiser or the paper is dead, but in this instance there's nothing wrong with the newspaper."

Hilda A. Wunderlich

110-112 N. ONEIDA ST. APPLETON

Fifty-seven years ago a maid in the family of C. H. Leonard spilled hot lard in the family's "top-icer". Mr. Leonard cleaned it out; today his labors are celebrated as the beginning of domestic refrigeration. For when he finished cleaning the old box, he set to work to build a new and better one. The "new and better" one was the first refrigerator for the home.

For three generations talented engineers have sought "new and better ways" to protect the family's food. In the opinion of Mr. Wichmann, of the Wichmann Fur-niture Co., local Leonard Electric Refrigerator dealer, this indicates that the electric refrigerator of today is not the product of a few men, working for a few months—it is the product of many men, working for many years.

"Every detail of the Leonard Electric Refrigerators for 1937," says Mr. Wichmann, "reflects the store of engineering and manufacturing experience gained over more than half a century. The perfected performance of the new Leonard has come only after more than half a century of catering to the domestic refrigeration of a nation's housewives."

Convenience features of the 1937 Leonard are the answer to the refrigerator demands of American home-makers, according to Mr. Wichmann. Revealed in a recent nation-wide survey, these refrigeration desires were carefully studied and built into the refrigerators for this year. Among them: Mr. Wichmann lists scientifically spaced shelves, drawers for crisp- ing moist vegetables and storing dry ones, large amounts of quickly frozen foods easily removed, and automatic interior light, modernistically styled appearance built-in thermometer, and quiet operation.

"Evidence of Leonard's time-tested reliability is seen in the approval of the Good Housekeeping Institute and that of Underwriters' Laboratories, Inc." Mr. Wichmann states. "Leonard's Five Year Protection Plan with every refrigerator is written assurance of confidence in the product's ability to give efficient, uninterrupted refrigeration service."

A Little Saturday Talk

Several years ago, a book I had written, "The Child's Story of the Human Race," was translated into Japanese and ever since that time I have been getting letters from Japanese readers. Now and then a Japanese magazine has come to me, or a batch of picture post cards, or some other little present.

Only the other day, a parcel arrived from a Japanese woman whom I had never met. She sent me several yards of cloth made in her country. It was "block printed," probably by hand.

Most of the letters from Japanese readers tell of their wish to be friendly toward people of other nations. If you read in the papers of the Japanese army making an attack on some other country, do not believe it means that the plain people of Japan want war. Only two of three months ago, an election showed that most of the Japanese voters were in favor of a party which wants peace.

The great majority of the letters are written in Japanese, but some are written in English. The other day, this one reached me: Dear Mr. Ramor Coffman: "It is the first time that I write my letter in English. I was taught very many knowledges by your work. The 'World Human History' is easy to understand, is very interesting, especially about ancient children's lives. I have heard many histories, and was taught at school. But in these histories was written about war, and 'rise and fall of a nation.' "I think that Japanese must know about customs, culture, products

(Night Game)

KAUKAUNA—The Electric City Brewers will be at home to their neighborhood rivals, Little Chute, Sunday night, in a Northern State league game and the Kaukauna mugs are hoping for one of the largest crowds of the season.

The Kaws have copped their first two stars in the closing lap and, with Sonny Carvenaugh curving 'em better than ever, Manager Bowers is confident that his club will continue its victory spree. Dick Weisgerber is expected to return from the east in time to take the mound for the Chuters.

Either Andy Fortin or Harlan Bohne, who has returned from Wausau, will hurl for Two Rivers on Sunday when the Icebergs tackle their ancient enemies, Manitowoc at the Walsh stadium. The Cool City crew is eager for revenge as Borths & Co. whipped them twice in the opening half. Lefty Schoepke has been nominated to work for Manitowoc.

Kimberly is booked for a game at Green Bay. The Papermakers will pitch their pitching hopes on Lefty Behr while the revamped Bays have hopes that Johnny Rowe will be equal to the occasion and turn back the visitors.

Dick Weisgerber has returned from Cleveland and will be on the mound for the Hollanders Sunday night. Jack Lamers will be the receiver. Lefty Smith, a Madison product, has joined the club and will show in center field. Lewis, another recruit, who hails from Menasha, also will be in the lineup. The rest of the invading lineup will include Peotter, first base; Bongers, short stop; Verstege, third base; Bob Lamers, left field; and Ellis, right field. Lewis will show at second base. Dombrowski has been released. Manager George Vanderloop said.

Forsters Crack Down on Oshkosh For 29th Victory

Tesch Gives Up Three Hits in Turning Back Lonnie's Laundries

LONNIE'S LAUNDRY of Oshkosh proved a tough egg to crack, but the Forsters Taverne broke them up in the eighth inning when they ran in a run to victory in a night game Friday at the Forster's lighted field. It was the Forsters' twenty-ninth victory.

Tesch gave up three hits as he held the Oshkosh club to only one run. Bat stars for the Forsters were R. Choudoir and R. Natrop who each got two hits in three trips. Natrop socked a home run to win the ball game for the Forster squad.

Kachur, Oshkosh pitcher, hit a triple and scored on an infield out to give Oshkosh a 1 to 0 lead in the fourth frame. Natrop singled through short in the sixth and Rich Dietzen fanned, but Natrop advanced and scored as Tesch grounded out. Natrop came back in the eighth with a circuit clout in right center to win the ball game.

Appleton girls turned back the Little Chute girls' squad 19 to 1 as Shirley Laux gave up three hits in a preliminary. Pearl Leinwand formed the other part of the winning battery while the Oshkosh starters, Margaret and Helen, formed the Little Chute battery.

Riggs Blocks Allison's Way to Tennis Title

Sea Bright, N. J. — (U) — Wilmer Allison's path to the Sea Bright bowl was blocked today by 19-year-old Bobby Riggs, the level-headed Los Angeles youngster who faced the 33-year-old veteran in the final round of the Lavin Tennis and Cricket Club's 50th annual invitation.

Allison was favored to win—if he could fashion a victory in three straight sets. Hampered by a chip-sprayed bone in his right arm, a lingering sprain and a strained ligament in his back, and a swollen knee, Allison figured the match would have to be brief if he was to be returned a winner.

The gallery cherished the memories of yesterday's thrilling final round in the women's singles in which blonde Alice Marble of Los Angeles toppled her European nemesis, the Polish madwigo Jozefka. The Polish had dropped three decisions to the champion of Poland at Wimbledon. Beckenham and St. George's Hill—but came back from the brink of defeat to triumph yesterday, 6-3, 5-7, 6-6.

Giants Bank All Hope in Today's Game on Hubbell

If Chicago Clouters Send Carl to Showers, It's Good Night New York

BY SID FEDER
Associated Press Sports Writer

IT'S up to the meal ticket again. Today's game with the Cubs. If those Chicago clouters punch Mr. Meatlicket Hubbell full holes again, as they did last week, the New York Giants are going to have as much chance of tossing elephants around by the tails as they will of catching the Cubs at their current pace.

Hubbell, of course, is used to being the man on the spot. But today, facing Tex Carleton, it's just about a case of come through—or else.

When the Cubs clouted their jinx, Harry Gumbert, for a 5-3 win in the series opener yesterday, largely through the help of Giant fielders provided in kicking the ball around, the Terry Terrers were dropped four games back in second place. If Hubbell can't do it today, the Giants are going to need a ton of horseshoes to overcome the resolute five-game lead down the stretch.

Yanks Breeze Along
In fact, if the Cubs clip King Carl, that supposedly red hot National league dog-fight will be as free and easy as the American league bus business where the New York Yanks are breezing along.

Given their first effective pitching in a week, and aided by Lou Gehrig's Homer No. 20, murderers' row walloped the St. Louis Browns, 6-2, yesterday behind Kemp Wicker in their series opener.

Since the second-out-of-place Chicago White Sox, like the Philadelphia Athletics, were idle, the win boosted the Yankees' edge half a game.

The classic of the day came in Pittsburgh where the Pirates put a story-book finish to one of the season's tightest pitching duels by scoring a run with two out in the ninth inning to top the Boston Bees 1-0. Dutch Brandt left-handed his way to a two-hit victory and bested old Guy Bush for the decisive moment found Lefty LaMaster, one of the year's better pitching rookies, hurling a five-hit shutout to give the Philadelphia Phillies a 1-0 win over the Cincinnati Reds in a night game.

Brooklyn and St. Louis Cardinals were idle.
Jack Wilson pitched hitless relief ball for two innings and then doubled in the tenth to drive in the run that gave the Boston Red Sox a 6-5 victory over the Detroit Tigers.
Washington's Senators, continuing their recent heavy hitting, pounded a couple of pitchers for 18 hits and a 13-2 conquest of the hapless Cleveland Indians.

Fourth Ward All-Stars Beat Doolinger Beers

Swamp hurled 3-hit ball last night at the Interlake park as the Fourth Ward All-Stars blanked the Doolinger Beer squad 2 to 0. The game was a pitcher's battle between Swamp and Filz, each allowing three hits. Swamp walked one batter and whiffed 13, while Filz struck out nine and gave no bases on balls. Both All-Stars came in the fourth frame when N. Deeg got on base through an error and scored when the catcher threw the ball wild to second base on an attempted steal. E. Lietz tripled and scored on Kirk's flyout to center. Games with the All-Stars can be arranged by calling Ervin Lietz at 3636.

Weekend Digest Of Business Activity In Appleton And Vicinity

Perfect Weather Always Available In Aire-Flo Unit

Heinritz Sheet Metal Works
Offers Fine Lennox Equipment

You have known summer days that simply invite you to come outdoors and enjoy yourself. On these days you have found the temperature to be just right, the air has been clean and fresh with the proper moisture content, and there has been a gentle breeze to keep the air moving around you constantly. Experiencing a condition of this nature gives you some idea of what to expect in year-round comfort which air-conditioning makes available inside your home or buildings.

Air-conditioning reproduces by mechanical means this delightful atmospheric condition inside the building 12 months of the year. In other words, it is a process of keeping air at the right temperature, cleaning it of dirt, humidifying it in winter, and dehumidifying it in summer, and keeping it always moving.

Many people think that air-conditioning is primarily cooling. This is logical because the first air-conditioning systems were installed in theatres and public buildings where their operation became more noticeable during summer. In residences however, the air-conditioning system performs its most important service during the winter heating months. It is during these eight months that doctors are busy fighting the common cold and its attendant troubles. It is during winter when the children are kept indoors that they play on the floor where cold floor drafts, found in homes not properly air-conditioned, become a menace to their health. For these reasons the winter phase of air-conditioning is considered by many more important.

In the new 1937 Lennox furnaces, offered by the Heinritz Sheet Metal Works, this ideal is realized. A long list of features of the new Lennox furnaces which the Lennox aire-flo units may be a part of, if desired, include riveted steel construction, extra large heating surfaces, guaranteed uniform warmth in every room, double ventilated casings, quiet blowers, efficient filters, high capacity humidifiers, automatic controls, streamlined beauty, safety, and cleanliness.

The new Lennox aire-flo units which can be added to the Lennox furnaces or any good air-tight furnace will modernize your basement, add to your comfort, improve your health, and lower your fuel costs. Silent, automatic, highly efficient, it produces a perfect atmosphere for you to enjoy. Its attractive appearance and space-saving features make your basement a livable, usable part of your home. These and many other features of the Lennox heating and air-conditioning systems will gladly be explained to you without obligation if you stop in at the Heinritz Sheet Metal offices or call 185 and invite a representative to call on you.

One Thing That's Sure to Last Is Stone Memorial

Twin City Monument Works
Offers Permanent Family Memento

As you drive through any cemetery, whether it be one you are familiar with or one in some strange vicinity, you can't help but express your likes or dislikes about individual lots, the way they are kept up, the type of stone they have on, and the whole appearance sums up in your mind just how much respect has been shown this family name. A beautifully kept lot, set off by a beautiful memorial, attractive in style, stone, and workmanship, is one to admire and you can't help but respect those who endeavored to keep up the lot for the sake of the family name. Family records are really important in that they build up traditions and a chain of influence that will deeply affect the attitude of each succeeding generation within the family. These records, in the form of lasting memorials, are a common bond between all members of a family group.

When you consider selecting a memorial you should remember that this memorial must be fine while it need not be expensive or massive. It must have character and quality and dignity. To carry its message properly and to keep its trust through the years, it must have faultless quality to make it endure and sincere designing to make it really mean something in the cemetery. You will be very wise, therefore, to buy your memorial with the utmost care and from a dependable source. Be sure, before you buy, that you secure a correct design and that the material and craftsmanship will be of the best. Only that way can you be sure of lasting satisfaction.

When you want to consult someone experienced in this kind of work, the place to go is the Twin City Monument Works, located at 301-307 Main street, Neenah. Years of dependable service to its patrons means that you will be absolutely satisfied with the work done there, according to the Twin City Monument Works. A call to Neenah, 930-W, will give you all the information you desire concerning their monuments.

Jahnke Employs New Method With Used Auto Parts

Modernizes Ways of Obtaining and Storing Valuable Accessories

There was a time when car-wrecking businesses involved little more than the buying of old or smashed cars and junking them in some vacant lot to lie there until some motorist developed a need for a certain part. And a job it was too, to find the needed part. Little was known as to the stock on hand and usually after an hour or so of searching, it was first discovered whether or not the wrecking company had the particular part needed.

The massed wreckage, lying in the open, which the firms accumulated through the years, was subjected to extreme weather deterioration and the parts were rusted to the extent that they were no longer serviceable.

Inadequate wrecking service is a thing of the past at the spacious August Jahnke Wrecking Company's headquarters, located on Route 1, Menasha, on Highway 41, just outside of Appleton. A well kept service and storage house, built in addition to its experienced staff of workmen who understand the technique of removing all usable parts from wrecked cars with little or no breakage or wreckage or injury to the parts, eliminates the inefficient method practiced years ago. With its efficient cataloging system for parts it is a simple matter to find the part you need, thereby speeding up the service.

An appreciable reduction in the cost of your car operation over a period of one year can be realized if you take advantage of this firm's many services when your car demands attention.

Replacement of worn-out parts with Jahnke's good, used parts is not only a good investment from the standpoint of the saving effected in the purchase price but also you will find, according to its long list of satisfied customers, that these used parts will give many miles of dependable service.

"See Jahnke's first and save" is Jahnke's advice to you.

Oldest Convict Walks In Canon City Parade

Canon City, Colo. — (P. —) When John Cox, Colorado's oldest convict, was asked to participate in Canon City's 65th anniversary celebration parade there was one stipulation he made.

"I will march if you will let me walk beside a wagon carrying the kind of a stone they made me work on when I entered prison 43 years ago," he said.

The parade committee agreed but found trouble locating a wagon staunch enough to carry the stone, which weighed more than a ton.

Berliner Beer Is Enjoyable Drink For Entertaining

Solves Guest Problem Easily and Is Always Refreshing

When your guests say, "It is too hot to eat," the wise host or hostess finds the answer in Berliner Style, the Beer of Quality. The wise hostess knows that summer guests prefer not to eat heavy food—but a light snack, served with a brimming, foamy glass of full-bodied beer—will wake up their appetites just enough.

Beer is a nourishing food, easily digested, more enjoyable to your guests and you because it eliminates "fussing" with fancy dishes. The mark of superiority which gleams from the bottles of this popular beer is accepted throughout the state as an unmistakable symbol of good taste.

And so, in this season of summer entertaining, when you desire to pay your guests a truly gracious compliment, bear in mind the mark of superiority which Berliner Style boasts. Regardless of the type of beer you seek or the price that you want to pay, it is your trustworthy guide in buying and your assurance of real quality.

For those who may not have had as yet the enjoyment of a class of Berliner Style and to those who are already acquainted with this beer, Fred W. Kibbie, located at 115 S. State street, suggests that now is a particularly advantageous time to keep a case on hand for the enjoyment of your family and guests during the warm weather.

A call to 4626 will give you the service you desire. Ask for Berliner Style when you are out and keep it on hand when you are home.

Geenen's August Fur Sale Offers Splendid Coats

Manager of Fur Salon Tells Of Unconditional Guarantee

"Every woman who intends to look at fur coats in the fall owes it to herself to visit Geenen's August Sale of Norris Lea furs right now," says Irving Cohen, manager of Geenen's fur salon, and himself an expert furrier with more than 20 years experience in his field.

Never before, according to Mr. Cohen, has the Geenen store displayed so many beautiful furs nor, despite steadily rising prices, is it possible to find values so worthwhile as these. Upwards of 300 fur coats are on display right now at Geenen's and women who have visited this showing are enthusiastic in their reports of the pelts, the styling and the low prices.

An additional reason for this enthusiasm, Mr. Cohen believes, is to be found in the unconditional guarantee that accompanies every Norris Lea fur coat. Norris Lea coats, he adds, are exclusive in Appleton with Geenen's.

The August sale, announced this week, is predicted to set a new high for summer fur activity and early arrivals will, of course, be given the widest selection.
